STREWN WITH WRECKS

Appalling Loss of Shipping Along the Atlantic Coast.

MANY MEN PERISH IN THE NIGHT

The Storm Unequaled in the History of the Country—Great Havoc Reported in the Summer Resorts—The Wires Prostrated

NEW YORK, Nov 26.—The first storm of the winter is about over in this vicinity, but is still raging unabated along the New England coast. Telegraphic communication with that section is suspended. The Western Union has no wires between this city and Philadelphia, thus shutting off all southern points. The associated press Washington circuit, which usually runs from this city to Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington direct, is this morning made up by way of Buffalo, Cleveland and Pittsburg. The storm along the coast all the way from Hatteras has been very violent. It is feared that many marine disasters have occurred, although it will be some days before reports begin to come in, as the storm would drive the vessels off shore. The wires to Sandy Hook are all down, but the last message received from there said the highest wind ever experienced by the observer there was raging.

ALONG THE SHORE

The Western Union succeeded at noon in opening communication with Boston. A few wires were at that time working with Philadelphia. The associated press man at quarantine telegraphs as follows: "No arrivals, wires all down. No vessels anchored off here except the cruiser Boston, which still lies in the same position. I have not been able to get off to her yet as it still blows a fresh gale from the northeast with high confused seas. The beach along Staten island shores is full of driftwood and wreckage."

THE WORST EVER EXPERIENCED

DANVERS, Mass., Nov 26.—The present storm is the worst ever experienced at this time of year. The wind blew a hurricane and the snow drifted to a hight of three or four feet. Horse cars were abandoned and religious services were suspended last night. Telephone, telegraph and electric light wires are down. The drains are full and the streets flooded.

RIVER TRAVEL SUSPENDED.

ALBANY, N Y, Nov 26.—River travel is entirely suspended. The steamer City of Hudson was beaten into Catskill creek, and is there frozen fast. Down the river passenger and freight boats between New York and this city are laid in for shelter from the storm. Ferry boats and transfer barges are reported sunk.

EIGHT VESSELS WRECKED

LEWES, Del., Nov 26.—Five barks and three schooners are reported to this point as having been wrecked on this coast.

AT ROCHESTER.

ROCHESTER, N Y, Nov 26.—The canal is filled here with boats frozen fast. There is two inches of snow.

THREE VESSELS ASHORE

Several Men Washed Overboard in the Gale and Drowned

BOSTON, Nov 26.—The schooner Avlona dragged ashore on Spectacle island during the storm yesterday. She will probably float when the weather moderates. The Avlona experienced a terrific gale in the bay, during which three of the crew were washed overboard and lost; their names were Chas. Blackford, John Doucelle and James Todd, all belonging to Liverton, N. S.

The schooner A. J. Walker, of Fall River, is ashore at Hull. Capt. Westgan and the first mate are reported lost.

The schooner Gertrude is also ashore here.

THE STORM AT CAPE MAY

A Magnificent Sight, but One Full of Wreck and Peril

CAPE MAY, N J, Nov 26.—The seas are beating heavily against the new bulkhead of the new Mt Vernon tract. Spray is flying higher over the board walk at the lower end of the city than has ever been known. The iron ocean pier remains yet. Above the city the sea has cut away the beach from ten to fifteen feet. The sight is a magnificent one and is witnessed by almost the entire populace of the city. The Half Way house, just within the city limits, is a complete wreck and now lies flat upon the ground. The board walk or boulevard, owned by the city, extending from Michigan avenue to Chelsea, is almost entirely carried away. The beach is strewn for miles with debris. The strong wind had a clear sweep at the water in the thoroughfare, as it rolled towards Baltic avenue this morning in a most alarming volume. Residents along the greater part of the avenue were compelled to use boats to get away from their flooded homes.

AT MANHATTAN BEACH

The Marine Railroad Wrecked and Other Property Destroyed

MANHATTAN BEACH, L. I., Nov 25.—The tempest reached its highest strength here at one P M to-day, then the tide being very high and the breakers tremendous, with a strong northwest wind driving them on the esplanade which runs along the whole of the Manhattan Beach Co.'s property. About 750 feet was thrown high in air and destroyed from one end to the other. Immediately after, the depot at the west end of the marine railroad was swept into the sea bodily, and in a few minutes more fully one third of the track of the road was also carried away. The Brighton pavilion was partially carried away, and it is feared the rest of the buildings as well as what is left of the marine railroad and the east end of the depot will go at the next high tide if the storm continues.

AT LONG BRANCH

The Loss Estimated at From $150,000 to $300 000

LONG BRANCH, Nov 26.—Many cottages have been undermined and carried out to sea piecemeal during this storm. Cottages and bulkheads have been torn away and the lawns of the summer houses of wealthy New Yorkers have been swept into the ocean. The loss is from $150 000 to $300 000. Every bulkhead from Long Branch to Sea Bright has been torn out or badly damaged. The beach from Sandy Hook to Barnegat bay is covered with debris and wreckage. The Long Branch ocean pier was damaged by heavy timbers hurled against it by the surf. The bluff at Long Branch has been heavily cut out in places. At Deal Beach the life saving station is in danger. Nearly all the cottages lose their bathing houses and many of their summer houses they had erected on the bluff.

ON THE LAKES.

Many Vessels Driven Ashore by the Gale and Wrecked

KINGSTON, Ont., Nov 26.—The schooner Julia has been driven ashore at South Bay point, and is pounding heavily. A steamer has gone to her rescue.

The schooner Cora Post is ashore on Bell's point and seas are breaking over her.

The schooner W. J. Preston is ashore on Wolfe island and is breaking up in a gale.

A CREW RESCUED ON LAKE HURON

PORT HURON, Nov 26.—The steamer F. W. Wheeler reports picking up the crew of a foundered vessel on Lake Huron this morning. The name of the craft was not ascertained.

ON LAKE ONTARIO

OSWEGO, N Y, Nov 26.—Two lumber rafts and canal boats are wrecked at Cape Vincent on Lake Ontario. The storm is terrific.

SHILOH'S VITALIZER is what you need for Constipation, Loss of Appetite, Dizziness and all symptoms of Dyspepsia. Price 10 and 75 cents per bottle. Skidmore & Co., druggists.

HEAVY LOSS OF LIFE

A Fishing Schooner Wrecked and Sixteen Men Perish

SCITUATE, Mass., Nov 26.—A terrible loss of life is reported here by a wreck this morning. The large fishing schooner Edward Norton went ashore on First Cliff Point at 6 30 last night and immediately went to pieces. The crew consisted of sixteen men and fifteen perished.

RAILROAD NEWS

Talk About the Proposed Terminal Facilities in Portland

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov 26.—The statement was made in an evening paper that J. M. Buckley, assistant general manager of the western division of the Northern Pacific, and R. Koehler, manager of the Southern Pacific lines in Oregon, would meet Manager A. N. Towne sometime and have an informal discussion over terminal facilities in Portland.

J. M. Buckley, who has just returned from Paso Robles, San Luis Obispo county, where he has been for the benefit of his health, was seen by your correspondent to-night. Buckley states that so far as he is concerned no meeting took place or was talked of.

It is possible, however, that Koehler and Towne have had a consultation on the subject, but nothing can be heard of results at present. It is known that the Southern Pacific have had the matter up for informal consideration several times of late.

Buckley says his rheumatism has much improved over what it was when he left Tacoma. Then he could with difficulty walk about the room, but now he takes short strolls on the streets nearly every day. He will leave Los Angeles next Wednesday and may return to Paso Robles soon. He will probably remain South during the winter, and if California does not cure his rheumatism he will probably visit Hot Springs in Arkansas.

RAILROAD NOTES

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov 26.—Elijah Smith, president of the Oregon Railway & Navigation Company, was due here to-day from the East, but did not arrive.

General Manager Holcomb of the Union Pacific, was expected to reach Ogden to-day from the East on his way to this city. He will probably be here Wednesday morning.

General Manager A. N. Towne's refusal of the presidency of the Wisconsin Central is regarded by railroad men here as evidence of his long-headedness. He has a better future as third vice-president of the Southern Pacific than he could possibly have as executive of the Wisconsin road.

The Southern Pacific has found it profitable to carry coal into this market from the Wyoming mines, and it is now coming here at the rate of fifty to seventy carloads a week.

A CRIME OF THE SEA

Death of Peter Williams, Who Shipped From Astoria

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov 26.—The bark Thos. S. Stow, bound from Liverpool to this port, is now 54 days out. When she arrives here an investigation will probably be held as to the death of Peter Williams, one of her officers, an American, who shipped from Astoria for the round trip. Williams was taken on shore at Queenstown and placed in a hospital, where he died a few days later. An inquest was held over the remains, during which it transpired that when the vessel had been out from Astoria about two weeks Williams was disrated for incompetency. The sailors would not tolerate him in the forecastle on account of certain characteristics which he displayed, and he was obliged to occupy a small compartment under the forecastle head. The inquest revealed several abrasions and a scalp wound about three inches in length at the base of the skull of deceased, which had laid bare the bone. The second officer testified that Williams had claimed that some of the crew had burned him, and the marks of burns were discovered on his body. The coroner's jury found that Williams had died from the effects of two wounds on the head which had injured an already softened brain, and recommended that the most searching investigation should be made at the first American port at which the vessel should touch.

"THE YEOMEN OF THE GUARD."

How the Abbott Company Produced This Opera in San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov 26.—The Emma Abbott Opera Company produced "The Yeomen of the Guard," Gilbert and Sullivan's new opera, for the first time in San Francisco, at the Baldwin theater to-night before one of the largest audiences ever gathered in that theater. There were 120 people on the stage with magnificent scenic effects. Hundreds were turned away. The performance was pronounced a brilliant artistic success and is down for a long run.

THE ARIZONA LEGISLATURE

It Favors the Removal of the Capital to Phœnix

TUCSON, Ariz., Nov 26.—The official count of territory gives the legislative council to the republicans by four majority and the assembly to the democrats by two majority. A majority of both branches favor the removal of the capital to Phœnix at once and holding a term of the legislature there. The present legislature does not adjourn till March 21.

CLARA BELLE M'DONALD.

Dismissal of the Five Charges of Forgery Against Her

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov 26.—Judge Murphy to-day dismissed five charges of forgery which have been pending against Mrs. Clara Belle McDonald for the past year. The principal reason of the dismissal, as stated by counsel, was the injury that a trial for forgery would do Mrs. McDonald's child.

RAZORS IN THE AIR

One Negro Slashes Another in the Abdomen, Inflicting a Dangerous Wound

CHICO, Nov 26.—Two colored men named Jones and Powers had a quarrel in a saloon here to-day. Jones drew a razor and cut Powers several times in the abdomen. The wounds are dangerous, if not fatal.

A Great Water Enterprise

CLEVELAND, Nov 26.—Capitalists of this city are just now interested in an enterprise looking to supplying water from Lake Erie to inland cities of the state. It is believed a pipe 500 miles long can be worked to advantage, and contemplate running a water pipe line to Columbus and thence to Cincinnati, using pumping engines to force the water through.

The Australian Baseball Tour

CHICAGO, Nov 26.—It is estimated that the expense of Spaulding's baseball teams for the round trip to Australia will be $30 000, and that Spaulding's share of the receipts from games played since leaving Chicago has already exceeded $20 000. On this basis the trip will prove a financial success and will probably be continued around the world.

A Disastrous Explosion

NEW HOLLAND, Pa., Nov 26.—By the explosion of a keg of powder in the store of George Baremer at Scrafftown, on Welsh mountain, Saturday, Bertha, his 10-year old daughter, was killed. Baremer was fatally injured and his wife and two more of their children were slightly injured.

Bets On the Boat Race Paid

WASHINGTON, Nov 26.—Sullivan, who was disposed to contest the result of the O'Connor-Teemer boat race Saturday, and who for a time would not allow the money to be paid over on presentation to the stakeholders, has authorized its payment. It is probable that all bets will be soon settled.

Take the Northern Pacific Railroad, the dining-car route for all points East. Office, No. 2 Washington street.

HEROES OF THE STORM

Gallant Behavior of a Volunteer Life-Saving Crew

TWENTY EIGHT SEAMEN RESCUED

The Brave Men Pass From Wreck to Wreck in Their Work of Humanity—A Noble Struggle With the Gale

BOSTON, Nov 26.—The terrific effects of last night's storm have been everywhere manifest along the coast to-day. Although the loss of life already reported is large, it would have been still greater but for the brave efforts of Capt. Joshua James and his volunteer life saving crew of Hull, who are credited with saving twenty-eight persons from disabled vessels.

On Sunday afternoon a large three master went broadside on the beach at Hull. Captain James and his men rushed for the Hunt gun, breeches buoy and lifeboat of the Massachusetts Humane Society at Stony Beach, and after strenuous efforts they succeeded in bringing ashore the crew of nine men from the schooner, which proved to be the Cox and Green, from Philadelphia for Chelsea with coal. The vessel is now fast breaking up.

TWO MORE CREWS RESCUED

Hardly had the band of rescuers completed their work at this place when another vessel was discerned on the rocks about an eighth of a mile up the beach, but further from shore than the others. Hurriedly rushing their apparatus to a more available location they found that the distance was too great to allow the use of the breeches buoy, and the surf boat was quickly manned. The waves were tremendous and it was only after a hard and persistent struggle that the vessel was reached, their boat twice swamping in the attempt. The boat was at last brought under the vessel's bow and the crew of eight men swung themselves into it. The return to shore was a perilous trip, the boat filling several times, but it was finally thrown on the beach among the rocks by a huge wave and entirely smashed.

The volunteer life savers continued their patrol of the beach and at daybreak signaled a third vessel ashore about half a mile northeast of Abbott. She could not be reached by the breeches buoy, and as their surf boat had been demolished the tireless men started for the Strawberry hill station, four miles away, and returned with the Humane society's new boat, withstood the huge breakers and landed the crew of seven men.

Not satisfied with the work already accomplished, Capt. James and his band of twelve started for Atlantic Hill, seven miles down the beach, where two more vessels were reported ashore. Here they were joined by Capt. James Anderson of the Humane society station at Crescent Beach, and Capt. George H. Brown of the government station at North Scituate. Their efforts were directed to the rescue of five men who could be seen clinging to the rigging of one of the vessels. The sea was running higher than ever known before at that point, and it was thought impossible to reach the wreck with the surf boat. The Hunt guns were brought into use and two lines were almost simultaneously fired across her foretop by Captains Anderson and Brown. The men in the rigging eagerly seized the line and a hawser was pulled aboard, but just as the buoy was about to be sent out the line became fouled and the buoy was rendered useless.

At this critical moment three young men of Cohasset, named Angle, Antoin and Salvador, manned a small dory and at great peril attempted to clear the line. In this they were unsuccessful. The surf boat was then put out on its third perilous journey.

The waves were enormous, at times lifting the boat as high as the main top of the disabled schooner, but the brave crew never faltered, and at last reached the vessel's stern. As quick as they were within hailing distance a nearly exhausted seaman crawled out from under the furled sail on the mizzen top and came cautiously down the shrouds. Captain James threw him a line, which he fastened around his body, jumped into the sea and was rapidly drawn into the boat by strong and willing hands.

A desperate attempt was then made to force the surf boat forward to the foremast, but the waves would beat it back, and for nearly an hour they succeeded in reaching and holding their desired position. The men in the rigging were terribly exhausted and it was a difficult undertaking for them to descend, but one after another four of them descended in safety, jumped overboard, and like the first were drawn into the boat. It was then discovered that the fifth sailor in the rigging was a corpse and his body was left in its icy resting place.

The surf boat was headed for shore and a safe landing was effected, amid the cheers of the spectators.

When the storm struck the vessel Capt. Eldes and one seaman refused to go aloft until they were swept overboard. The others took to the rigging, where Steward L. Brown, of East Boston, being unable to withstand the cold, died early Sunday morning and was lashed to the mast by his companions. If the vessel rides out the storm as now seems likely the body will probably be removed to-morrow.

OTHER WRECKS

About one thousand feet northwest of this boat, high and dry upon the sandy beach within reach of Damon's pavilion, lies the three master Mattie E. Eaton, from Boston for Port Spain with a general cargo. The captain and crew were in the rigging eight hours before she struck, but they succeeded in reaching shore in safety in their boat.

Still another vessel was seen drifting about by the untiring band of rescuers, and getting no response to their attempt to place life lines, the vessel was boarded by the gallant crew, but no one was on board. It was the brigantine Alice, abandoned. The crew returned to shore and their noble work was done.

THE NEXT HOUSE

Quay Says the Republicans Will Have a Majority of Nine

WASHINGTON, Nov 26.—Senator Quay said to-day that the republicans would have a majority of nine in the next house.

The Bureau of Ordnance

WASHINGTON, Nov 26.—The annual report of Commodore Sicard, chief of the bureau of ordnance, to the secretary of the navy contains the following estimates for the fiscal year ending June 30 1890: Fuel, tools, material, labor, prizes, proofs, batteries of a new type for two ships now in the service, general armament with secondary batteries and small arms, $314 100; general repairs $1 000; rent, barracks $1 000; civil establishments at the navy yards $4 090; torpedo stations $70 000; towards the armament of vessels authorized $40 700; and for the completion of the gun plant at the Washington navy yard $625 000; total $5 436 130. High power steel cannon for the navy completed to date are: Two 5-inch, twenty four 6-inch, eight 8-inch, and three 10-inch. Since the last report a new design of a 6-inch gun has been completed and thirty-two of these guns are in course of construction.

Supreme Court Decision.

WASHINGTON, Nov 26.—The supreme court has rendered a decision in the case of Denny vs Bennett, affirming the decision of the Minnesota courts, which held that a debtor against whose property judgment and attachment have issued may make a general assignment in favor of a distribution of the proceeds of his property among his creditors.

Chicanery at Work

Interested and unscrupulous dealers, actuated by cupidity, occasionally represent other dentifrices as equal or akin to SOZODONT. Reject these substitutes always, and insist upon having that genuine reproducer of dental beauty, for your money, for it alone is money's worth.

THE K. OF L.

Powderly Regrets His Re-election, Having Been Offered Something Better

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov 26.—In the Knights of Labor convention this morning the grievance committee occupied the time. In the case of the contested delegation from district assembly No 114, New York, that headed by James E. Quinn was recognized.

Powderly says he is sorry he was re-elected, as he has been offered a better job, one paying $6000 for three months' work.

The business of the afternoon was nearly all of a routine character. One of the first things done on reassembling was the passage of a resolution to adjourn the assembly sine die to-morrow at noon.

The committee on appeals and grievances resumed work. The only case of importance considered was that of George Schilling, who as master workman of district assembly 24 of Chicago suspended local assembly 400. The local appealed to the general master workman, and was by him reinstated. Schilling thereupon appealed the case to this body on the ground that the master workman of the district assembly and not the general master workman had authority to suspend local assemblies. During the hearing of the case Schilling vigorously denounced Powderly on the floor of the assembly.

When Schilling had concluded his statement General Master Workman Powderly took the floor and argued in justification of his action by claiming that when the dispute arose between the district master workman and the general master workman the latter, being the superior officer, was entitled to authority.

The debate being closed the general assembly at first refused to sustain Powderly's action in reinstating the local assembly and then refused to indorse Schilling's appeal. By a small majority vote the whole matter was then referred to the new general executive board.

The newly elected general officers were installed this afternoon.

To-morrow the legislative committee will submit its report.

It is understood that Robert D. Layton and Ralph Beaumont will constitute the new committee on national legislation, with Layton as chairman.

The following named cities are applicants for the place of holding the next general assembly: Toronto, Canada; Atlanta, Ga.; New Orleans; Toledo, O.; Albany, N. Y., and Providence, R. I. It is thought that either Toronto or Atlanta will be chosen.

AN ANARCHIST TABLEAUX.

Intended to Convey the Impression That There is No Liberty in This Land.

CHICAGO, Nov 26.—An anarchists and sympathizers meeting was held last night in the suburb of Lakeview, which had been advertised as a free entertainment. After gymnastic exercises and singing the curtain over the stage went up, disclosing a tableaux. A prominent feature was a white bust of Spies. In the rear was a female personating the Goddess of Liberty. To her right was another representing Justice, with a sword and scales in hand, but her arm was held by a little girl, who sneeringly pointed at the Goddess of Liberty. Next was a man in black representing the law. His hands were thrown up and a typical anarchist held a sword to his breast. In front was another anarchist armed with an ax. Beneath his feet were the stars and stripes, and over his head waved a crimson flag.

Several citizens of Lakeview manifested disapproval of the tableaux and left the hall, but a majority of those present applauded wildly. The police say they will not allow a repetition of such entertainment.

DISASTROUS EXPLOSIONS

Defective Boilers Cause the Loss of a Number of Lives

LAFAYETTE, Wis., Nov 26.—A steam engine connected with a threshing machine exploded this evening, instantly killing Jack Tuttle and Charles York and seriously injuring four others, including Wm. Buckley, owner of the machine. Mr. Buckley has since died.

THREE MEN KILLED

PITTSBURG, Nov 26.—The Commercial Gazette's Centerville, Pa., special says: The boiler at Ralston saw mills exploded to-day, killing George Kelly, sawyer; Jesse Hall, fireman, and Leslie Cross, a farmer. Lewis Ralston was badly scalded, but may recover.

A DISASTROUS BOILER EXPLOSION

CINCINNATI, Nov 26.—The Commercial Gazette's Cochran, Ind., special says the boiler in a chair factory at that village exploded this morning, killing Wm. Bereke, John Stark and Wm. Matthews Jr., and severely injuring Fred Brucce, the engineer, besides wrecking the factory.

TO PURIFY POLITICS

That is the Mission of the Harrison Home Club of Indianapolis

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov 26.—The president-elect passed a quiet but busy day in his library. He had few callers.

The Harrison Home Club, an organization with a membership of 700 prominent Indianapolis republicans, and which did some very effective work in the general's interest at Chicago and throughout the campaign, has decided to maintain a permanent organization. Handsome headquarters will be opened where newspapers and political literature of every kind will be kept and out of town visitors entertained. Pending the intervals between elections the club will devote its attention to securing the enactment of laws looking to the amendment of the present election laws for the purification of elections and punishment of fraud and bribery. It is believed this will prove one of the first political clubs in the United States incorporated for this purpose.

THE EIGHT HOUR MOVEMENT

It Will be Considered at the Convention of the Federation of Labor

ST. LOUIS, Nov 26.—A local paper says: Although as far as can be learned local trades societies have not received any intimation from Chicago of the organization of an eight hour movement to be carried through at the convention of the American federation of labor, which is to meet in this city December 11, there is no doubt that the movement is well under way. Circulars explaining and urging it have been sent out to all organizations supposed to favor such a scheme, and it will probably be the leading work of the convention. The American socialists are the pushers of the scheme, and it is their idea to have it come to a focus in 1890, the probable result of which will be a general strike.

SHORT IN HIS ACCOUNTS

And to Make Them Balance He Stole $12 000

AUSTIN, Tex., Nov 26.—The robbery of a package of money containing $12 000 from the office of the Pacific Express Co. in this city last October has been traced to a clerk in the office named D. K. Flory, who is short in his accounts. Flory was arrested yesterday, and confessed to have stolen the package. He said he had buried it in a vacant lot. It was dug up and found to contain $800 of the missing money.

FOUR MEN KILLED

Result of a Desperate Free Fight in the Indian Territory

FT. SMITH, Ark., Nov 26.—Word has just reached here of a terrible shooting affray at Vian, Indian territory, which resulted in the death of four Cherokee Indians—George Starr, Isaac Gertie, Jesse Landrum and Boot Henzen. The three last named were drunk and Starr was one of a posse sent to arrest them. The shooting became general, and Ed Starr, brother of George, was shot through the hand.

The Last Spike Driven in the Heppner Branch.

AN EAST PORTLAND BOY KILLED

Montana's Political Revolution—A Fatal Bear Hunt—Coal Mines on the Santiam—New Cases of Smallpox.

HEPPNER, Or., Nov. [illegible].—The [illegible] branch of the O. R. & N. [illegible] Heppner [illegible] 1000 people [illegible] 200 [illegible] G. and the [illegible] the Heppner [illegible] to the depot [illegible] Major Henry Blackman delivered an address. Upon the conclusion three cheers were given and the last spike was driven by Hons. J. L. Morrow and Henry Heppner, the pioneers of the colony [illegible] the [illegible] three ringing salutes, echoing and re-echoing over the hills, which with the sparks of the locomotives, [illegible] rumbling of the cars and the cheer of the assemblage [illegible] that Heppner is no longer [illegible] direct communication with the outside world by that [illegible] of progress, a railroad. The town gives a free ball to-night and [illegible] in honor of this event.

AN EAST PORTLAND BOY KILLED

A Son of Mr. D. I. Leathers Falls From a Train Near P[illegible].

ALBANY, Or., Nov. [illegible].—A special from Harrisburg this evening says: On the arrival of the freight train this evening one of the brakemen, a young man named Leathers, was missing, and on returning with the engine his mangled body was found a quarter of a mile below the station. His head was fractured and one leg was broken. His home is in East Portland. It is not known how he came to fall.

[NOTE.—The unfortunate young man was a son of Mr. and Mrs. D. I. Leathers, well known in East Portland and Washington county. He was 17 years of age.

THE REVOLUTION IN MONTANA.

A Republican Gain of About 9000—A Total Vote of 40,000.

HELENA, Mont., Nov. 2[illegible].—As the official returns come in, which have been very slow, the evidence of the wonderful political revolution in Montana is more apparent, and many peculiar and interesting facts develop. The majority of Carter (rep.) has been estimated at 3700, but full returns show 5000. This is a republican gain, compared with 1886, of about 9000. As compared with the vote two years ago, Carter polled about 8000 votes more than Sanders (rep.), and Clark (dem.) polled 4000 less than Toole (dem.). In 1886 the delegate vote was 32,282, of which Sanders received 11,272 and Toole 17,990. The total vote this year will not fall short 200 of 40,000. At the very low ratio of one to four, the population cannot be less than 160,000. At the ratio of one to five 200,000. The prohibition vote of the territory is 175.

A FATAL HUNT

One of the Hunters Mistaken for a Bear by a Companion.

ALBANY, Or., Nov. 2[illegible].—The Herald's special correspondence from Walton on the lower Siuslaw says that on the 21st inst. John Schwartz, aged 29, George Montgomery and others went out after bear. The dogs ran into a thicket of brush and brought to bay a black bear. Young Schwartz rushed in the thicket and shot and killed it. In the meantime George Montgomery came up and seeing Schwartz [illegible] took it for the bear and shot, the ball passing through Schwartz's body near the heart. He cried out, "I am shot," and George ran to him and picked him up, when he said, "lay me down and let me die," and in a few minutes he was dead. Deceased was unmarried.

COAL MINES ON THE SANTIAM.

Pennsylvania Men Talking of Opening and Developing the Deposits.

ALBANY, Or., Nov. 2[illegible].—Forsythe Bros. & Co. of Pennsylvania are corresponding with citizens of this city concerning the opening and developing of coal deposits on the Santiam in Linn county. Experienced coal miners say rich and valuable coal veins exist in that locality, and the enterprise of placing the same upon the market promises to meet with success.

Ex-Governor L. F. Grover and W. H. Watkinds have already commenced opening the Findley coal mine ten miles east of the end of the Lebanon branch of the Southern Pacific Railroad Company's line recently purchased by them.

SALEM NEWS ITEMS.

Supreme Court—Three More Cases of Smallpox—Two Ruffians in Jail.

SALEM, Or., Nov. 26.—Alexander Jackson, respondent, vs. Wm. Jackson, appellant; appeal from Coos county; judgment of the court below affirmed; opinion by Thayer, J.

Jennie E. Bailey, respondent, vs. Charles DeRoy Bailey, appellant; appeal from Jackson county; judgment modified.

B. F. Dowell, appellant, vs. D. W. Applegate, respondent; appeal from Douglas county; argued and submitted.

The republican city convention to-night made the following nominations: Mayor, Major George Williams; recorder, L. Conn; marshal, James Ross; treasurer, E. J. Swafford. The city election will come off next Monday. The democrats have not yet called their city primaries and convention.

There are three new cases of smallpox in the Schwab family in the outskirts of North Salem. Yesterday a [illegible] months old child broke out with the disease and to-day two boys, aged 3 and 5 respectively, commenced having high fever, which is the premonitory symptom of the disease. As the father, mother and elder daughter have been vaccinated they will likely escape the contagion.

Willis and Al Jordan, aged 12 and 19 years respectively, both of whom have often figured in the criminal courts of Polk and Marion counties, are in trouble again. Sunday night they went to the house of Henry Tate, in South Salem, to see a 16 year old niece of Tate's, with the intent to get her away to [illegible]. Tate ordered the boys out of the house, when each of them drew a long knife and resisted. They succeeded in getting the girl to leave the house and took her to a house of ill fame, where she now is. Tate to-day swore out a warrant in Recorder Strickler's court for their arrest on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon, and they were arrested by Marshal Ross and lodged in the county jail last night.

A young man named George Harold, who lives on Lewis river, W. T., opposite St. Helens, had an arm broken by jumping off a moving train here Sunday night. He recently won $[illegible] in a lottery and came here to see his sweetheart. In his anxiety to get into her presence he leaped from the train when it was running at full speed and met with the disastrous result above stated.

A BAD MAN IN [illegible]

He Shoots a Citizen of Ritzville and Is Simply Ordered Out of Town.

RITZVILLE, W. T., Nov. 2[illegible].—Charles Despain was shot [illegible] night by [illegible] in a dispute over a game of [illegible]. A hard character calling himself [illegible] been hanging round town several days [illegible] our citizens what a bad man he was [illegible] night he shot Despain in the arm, the ball ranging up toward the elbow. He was immediately disarmed, taken to jail and to-day was brought before Justice [illegible], who told him to leave town immediately, as no one appeared to prosecute. Landlord Myers says he is a handy man [illegible] and not bothering any one. He is suspected of tapping the till in the hotel office, as money was missed, but no proof could be had.

Moody Drawing Great Crowds—The $1,000,000 Real Estate Co.

TACOMA, Nov. 26.—Articles of incorporation of the Land Company Del Norte were filed with the auditor to-day. The purpose of the organization is to buy and sell real and personal property, deal in franchises, stocks, bonds, etc., construct street railways, telegraph and telephone lines, operate [illegible] and navigation lines, etc. Capital stock, $200,000. Trustees, Walter J. Thompson, Eber L. Dunning and Eugene Cushing. Mr. Thompson is president of the Merchants' National bank.

Evangelist Moody arrived here Saturday and yesterday gave four sermons at the opera house, at each one of which the hall was packed to its utmost capacity. To-night a thousand men and women gathered in front of the doors an hour before they were opened. The crowd became impatient and when the doors were finally opened the crush was so great that many persons were injured. One lady was seriously hurt, being unable to retrace her steps, and was compelled to remain in [illegible] until the services were over.

Argument in the [illegible] of [illegible] Carr v. W. H. [illegible] [illegible] Since the murder [illegible] hanged at [illegible] years ago [illegible] and that [illegible] (Carr's) subsequent location is valid.

FROM SEATTLE.

The Indian Woman Murder—Land Claimed By Squatters—Vags Arrested.

SEATTLE, Nov. 2[illegible].—A week ago an Indian woman was found murdered in a cabin on the beach. Soon after two women, an Indian and a white woman, were arrested for the murder. No formal charge was laid against them and they have been in jail ever since. Police Justice Soderberg says Prosecuting Attorney Ronald never goes into his office on territorial matters and Justice [illegible] knows nothing of the matter, so the women are compelled to languish because of some one's suspicions which were evidently not well founded.

There is great excitement over a recently discovered narrow strip of land alleged to be vacant and now claimed by the Columbia & Puget Sound Railway Company. To-night the railway company and public officers put forces on the ground to prevent a disturbance of any kind. The whole of the disputed land is occupied by shanties, the occupants of which were allowed the privilege to build cabins there on account of the scarcity of houses. These squatters held a meeting to-day and determined to stand by Harlan, whose house was torn down by the railroad employes, and make this a test case. Harlan claims to have been assured by a civil engineer that the error occurred in the original survey, which leaves forty acres vacant. It is evident that a crisis has been reached, and whether the 200 squatters will either get cheap homes or be forcibly evicted from the premises will probably be developed in a few days.

The police force is making a raid on the undesirable element who compel livings from the earnings of fallen women. They are arrested on a charge of vagrancy and on conviction are put at work in the chain gang. The officers arrested to-night the following charged with vagrancy: Chas. Belmont, Frank Callaghan, Tom Hogan, John Wilson, Ed. Driscoll, Tom Murphy, John McCaffrey, Sam'l Clark, Jas. Kennan and Wm. Doran.

FROM WALLA WALLA.

Railroad Construction—A Meddlesome Man Terribly Wounded.

WALLA WALLA, W. T., Nov. 26.—Grading on the O. & W. T. both the Walla Walla and Eureka Flat lines is completed. Tracklaying will be pushed with vigor. It is expected that iron will be laid only to the corporation line at present, until rights of way within are fully settled. Mr. Hunt is here endeavoring to settle claims for damages.

Thomas Barker was brought from Wallula Sunday and taken to the hospital with a severe gun shot wound in the head and neck. Barker states that he was standing at the gate of the residence of one Turner, talking to Turner's wife, when he was shot from within the house. A full charge of shot tore away the left side of his face and neck, causing a fearful wound. It is believed the firing was done by Turner, who was jealous of Barker's attentions to his wife. Others report that Barker attempted to enter the house after night and was shot by Mrs. Turner. It is said Barker was under the influence of liquor. At any rate he has a terrific wound which it is thought will prove fatal.

AN INDIAN MURDERER CAPTURED.

He Tells Who Were His Accomplices—The Notorious Potlatch Fan.

SPOKANE FALLS, W. T., Nov. 26.—Last summer a short time previous to the killing of an Indian by the police below town, a white man was murdered and another seriously wounded in South Idaho by Indians. The parties to the crime, two bucks and a squaw, made their escape, and a reward of $500 was offered for their capture. Saturday evening a deputy United States marshal for Idaho arrived in the city from Montana in charge of one of the Indians accused of the crime.

The prisoner being lodged here, Chief Warren went to see him. The "white chief" and the Indian no sooner saw each other than they remembered having met before, but Chief Warren could not remember when or where. The Indian refreshed his memory, and stated that he was present when the Indian was killed in the river and further that the Indian was one of the three engaged in the South Idaho murder.

It will be remembered that the death of the Indian here resulted from his having opened fire on the police with a Winchester rifle which was handed him by a squaw. The prisoner further stated to Chief Warren that the squaw above mentioned was none other than Potlatch Fan, the third of the trio engaged in the South Idaho murder, and that the rifle was the same one used in committing that crime.

In answer to a question as to what had become of Potlatch Fan the prisoner stated that she was at present somewhere in the Palouse country. The deputy marshal left to-night with his prisoner for Boise City. Now that Potlatch Fan is known to be in the country she too will in all probability be captured.

FROM SPOKANE FALLS.

The Cable Railroad to be Built—The Monroe Street Bridge.

SPOKANE FALLS, W. T., Nov. 26.—A meeting of the [illegible] to the Monroe street bridge fund and of the [illegible] of the cable railroad was held this afternoon. The cable road people are anxious to push work and in view of the uncertainty of matters at present they proposed to build the bridge themselves or place it in the hands of a committee of subscribers. Any way suited them as long as the bridge was built. A committee was appointed to consider the proposition. The committee will make a report at a meeting to-morrow afternoon.

A. S. Moore of the cable company said: "We have made a very fair proposition to the city. Our first intention was to go along Post street and our plans were laid to go that way. The people of Monroe street came along and asked us to go across that thoroughfare. It was not our proposition at all, you see."

"What will you do in case the bridge is a failure?"

"We will go around to Post street."

"Then in any event we will have the cable railroad?"

"Yes, that's certain. But the city will never have another opportunity to get a $15,000 bridge for $15,000."

HIS EYESIGHT DESTROYED.

The Accident That Befell a Boy Who Was Playing With Powder.

ALBANY, Or., Nov. 2[illegible].—A special from [illegible] says that while several boys were playing with powder yesterday, Walter M[illegible] had his face and hands severely burnt by the explosion of a can of powder. He has been unable to see since the accident and it is feared his eyes are put out.

Four Apache Murderers.

TUCSON, Nov. 26.—The four Apache military pupils who, in June, 1887, mutinied and escaped with other Indians from the reservation, and who were afterwards captured and sentenced by court martial to imprisonment at Alcatraz, but were pardoned by the president three weeks ago, were brought here to-day [illegible] the trial for the murder of Mr. [illegible] and a man named Diehl, committed after leaving the reservation.

C. W. Knowles and H. C. Leonard, of Portland, have arrived in the city.

A. Weinberg of Tacoma is registered at the Palace.

Few Will Mourn His Death.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 26.—It was widely stated to-day that the death yesterday of Frank Wessell, who was shot by Joseph McDermott, relieves the city of a troublesome man. He bore a very unsavory reputation. The lodging house of which he was proprietor is one of the worst in the city and is a harbor for the lowest class of opium fiends, street walkers and thieves. The police have often had difficulty with Wessell and in fact he went so far as to threaten to kill the first policeman who entered his house. At the time of his death he was under $[illegible]000 bonds to keep the peace.

A Law Firm in Trouble.

SACRAMENTO, Nov. 26.—The supreme court justices sitting in bank made an order to-day citing Messrs. Shafter, Parke & W[illegible], a prominent firm of attorneys, to appear and show cause why the firm should not be punished for contempt for framing a petition reflecting on the court's honor.

A Mysterious Explosion.

M[illegible], Nov. 26.—This afternoon an explosion occurred in the blacksmith shop of Muncey & King. The front part of the building was blown out and M. J. Scarpa received a painful but not fatal wound from flying debris. The cause of the explosion is not known.

VANCOUVER, Nov. 26.—The steamship Albany has arrived from Yokohama with nine saloon passengers, twenty-eight Chinese and five Japanese for Seattle. She has 1400 tons of cargo for overland and 800 for coast ports.

The Strike at Indianapolis.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 26.—The switchmen's strike did not extend to-day to the engineers or firemen as was anticipated. The situation remains unchanged, except that all the roads are moving trains to-day and to-night, and the blockade is nearly overcome. New men are applying for work at every office, and the superintendents say they will have no difficulty in supplying every striker's place within the next few days. The day, taken as a whole, was rather disastrous to the strikers, and there is a visible weakening manifested by some of their number. The general officers of the Locomotive Brotherhood and Firemen's Association did not put in their appearance to-day, as it was given out they would. It cannot be reliably ascertained that either of these organizations has taken any step toward assisting or sustaining the strikers.

The Political Naturalist.

New York Herald.

It is said in praise of the famous naturalist Cuvier that he reconstructed the whole animal from a thigh bone dug from a mound. Bah! That was well enough for those befogged times. Nowadays if you give almost any aspirant for such office a single quill he will make a whole goose of himself before the end of the campaign.

A Policeman Murdered.

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 26.—Policeman Albert W. Thayer was shot and instantly killed shortly after 10 o'clock to-night, near the corner of Fort and Lafayette streets. The only clew to the murderer is a satchel, found near the scene of the tragedy, containing a complete set of burglars tools.

Developments in the Blackburn-Rucker Quarrel.

TRAIN DISASTER IN COLORADO

A Man Annihilated by an Explosion—More Cabinet Guessing—Maj. Nickerson in Canada—The President's Message.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 2[illegible].—[illegible] Moore of Denver is here. He is supposed to bear a challenge to Senator Blackburn from Judge Rucker. This is the outgrowth of the famous interview between President Cleveland, Blackburn and Rucker, during which according to Rucker's statement [illegible] attributed his defeat to treachery in New York on the part of Hill and others. Senator Blackburn answered this [illegible] and the president has also contradicted Rucker's statement.

A WILD STORY WITH [illegible]

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 26.—To-morrow's Transcript will say: "Senator J. C. S. Blackburn and Col. J. Stoddard Johnson arrived here yesterday at noon and were joined by Gen. Basil W. Duke, who was here on a visit, and Gen. James F. Robinson of this city. They went by a private carriage en route to the rear of the Phoenix hotel and entering the building went to the rooms secured for them by telegraph.

Evidently their purpose was to be as quiet as possible and none but the newspapers got wind of their presence. The gentlemen alluded to held a consultation that resulted in the conclusion that Senator Blackburn should write a communication to the Courier-Journal, which was done, and the letter sent to that journal this afternoon by the hand of Gen. Duke. In it Senator Blackburn says he has heard nothing directly or otherwise except through the press from Judge Rucker. Of Rucker's open letter he quotes parts stating that nothing personally offensive has been intended, but that if the senator wishes to meet the writer he can be accommodated. Then he concludes by saying that he feels it due to the public and himself to state that while Rucker's conduct in making public his report was entirely unjustifiable he (the senator) regrets that the language he used in characterizing the judge's conduct was strong and emphatic, and he feels that he should have simply contradicted statements he knew to be incorrect and unjust to President Cleveland and himself.

A DENIAL.

DENVER, Nov. 26.—The report from Lexington, Ky., that Col. John C. Moore was there bearing a challenge from Judge Rucker to Senator Blackburn is untrue.

TRAIN DISASTER IN COLORADO.

Two Men Killed, Several Injured and Three Cars Burned.

DENVER, Nov. 26.—A fatal accident occurred on the Denver & Rio Grande track at a station named Husted, fifteen miles north of Colorado Springs, this morning, by which two men were killed and several fatally injured. The Rock Island uses the track of the Rio Grande from Colorado Springs to Denver. The Salt Lake express on the Rio Grande pulled out of Palmer's Lake eight minutes late and was thundering down the divide thirty miles an hour. One mile south of Husted the track makes a sharp curve, on turning which the engineer was horrified to see rapidly approaching the Rock Island express.

The engineers and firemen of both trains jumped and a moment after the engines came together with a thundering crash, telescoping the cars of both trains and rendering them a mass of broken timbers and iron.

The upsetting of a stove in the Rock Island baggage car set fire to the train, and before it could be extinguished three cars were consumed, but fortunately no one was imprisoned in them.

Investigation found only two train men killed: W. H. Phillips, express messenger, and J. H. Flynn, baggage master, both of the Rock Island. The wounded are Martin Munroe, engineer of the Rio Grande, slight fracture of the skull and badly hurt internally, will probably die; Joseph Barry, engineer of the Rock Island, head cut and badly bruised; Harry Smith, fireman, badly scalded and head cut. The fireman of the Rio Grande train received fatal injuries. Several others were more or less injured, but not seriously.

The responsibility, it is claimed, rests with the train despatcher.

A MAN ANNIHILATED.

He Was Driving in a Wagon Holding 1040 Pounds of Nitro-Glycerine.

PITTSBURG, Penn., Nov. 26.—"Dock" Haggerty was unloading nitro-glycerine at Pleasantville, Shenango county, at noon to-day. He had 1040 pounds of it in a wagon. It exploded by some means, and Haggerty was literally annihilated. Parts of his two horses were found half a mile away. Mrs. Gutschaw, in a house in the vicinity, was seriously injured by the side of it being blown in. The explosion was heard at Oil City, twelve miles distant.

CABINET GUESSING.

Belief General That Blaine Will Not Be a Member.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—A Washington special to the Tribune says: Prominent republicans here regard three cabinet positions provided for: Ex-Senator T. C. Platt of New York will be secretary of the treasury, Russell A. Alger of Michigan secretary of war, and John Wanamaker, the well known Philadelphia merchant, postmaster-general. It is not thought that either Blaine or Sherman will be in the cabinet.

ANOTHER FORECAST.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—A gentleman just from Indianapolis says: Blaine has never been thought of in connection with the cabinet. John Sherman will be secretary of state, if he will accept. The secretary of the treasury will be either Allison or Miller. If Allison declines, Clarkson will go into the interior department. Some Southern man will be attorney general, and he will be selected from one of the states that may be made republican. This means Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina and Tennessee.

MAJ. NICKERSON IN CANADA.

He is Living Near Niagara Falls With Wife No. Two.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—It is learned that Maj. Azor H. Nickerson, who some years ago startled society by his marital exploit and his sudden disappearance to Canada, is now living near Niagara Falls under the Dominion flag. Maj. Nickerson had his wife take a trip to Europe for the purpose of educating their daughter, and while he was away the husband obtained a divorce in a Philadelphia court setting aside their marriage. The major a few days afterward married a Miss [illegible] Carter. He deeded to his new spouse a handsome residence on Dupont circle.

Hearing of the matter Mrs. Nickerson No. 1 had the divorce set aside and then proceeded to levy upon all the property which the fugitive husband left behind him when he fled to Canada. The suit to recover the house deeded to wife No. 2 was warmly contested, and finally carried to the supreme court of the United States, which a few months ago decided that the property really belonged to wife No. 2 and could not be recovered from her. The suit was based upon the claim that it was bought from the proceeds of a sale of some property in Portland, Or. Wife No. 2 recently joined her husband in Canada where they were married. The first Mrs. Nickerson formed her husband's acquaintance while on a visit to Portland near where he was stationed at the time as an army officer.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

It Will Blow Cleveland's Horn, and Treat of Tariff and Reform.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—S. L. M. Barlow, a democratic lawyer of New York who is quite near to the president, says that the message that will be sent to congress next Monday will refer to nothing but the success of the present administration, the necessity of tariff reduction and civil service reform.

WOULD BE COWBOYS.

They are Swindled by a Sharper and Want to Hang Him to a Lamppost.

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—S. W. Smith, representing himself as the agent of Mills & Orton, stockmen at Socorro, N. M., was arrested to-day while receiving scores of personal applications in answer to an advertisement for young men who wished employment as cowboys on the [illegible] at $45 a month. Smith had collected $5 from each and [illegible] good faith. [illegible] the Smith had [illegible] arrangement with the [illegible] railroad for transportation [illegible].

GEN. SHERMAN [illegible]

The Old Soldier Says that Only [illegible] for Men Should Represent Us Abroad.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2[illegible].—Gen. W. T. Sherman was interviewed to-day in regard to his [illegible] last night at the dinner of [illegible] American people would be represented [illegible] who would fought for the country and not against it.

"I meant every word I said," he said. "If you were a young man in Vienna, and a man should come over there to represent his government who had once borne arms against it you would make up your mind that the cause he battled for could not have been a bad one. I want to keep the people over there educated up to the fact that we crushed the rebellion. I am not opposed to ex-rebels holding office among their own people; indeed I have recommended the appointment of ex-rebels to local office. But I am opposed to sending them as our representatives to foreign governments."

"Do you know Gen. Harrison well?"

"Know him? I've known him ever since he wore pantalettes. I knew his grandfather and his father. He was one of my soldier boys, and we can all go to sleep for four years now fully assured that we will have a strong Union government."

"You are on the retired list and of course are still subject to military rules. Could your remarks last night about the president be construed as a violation of the military regulations concerning the attitude of a soldier toward his superior officer?"

The general laughed in a way that meant he would like to see some one call him to count for a violation of military discipline.

"I have as much respect for authority as any one," he said, "and will pay respect to it, but I have a right to think just as I please and say what I think."

ANOTHER HUMORIST.

His First Joke Proves to be a Very Serious Affair.

America has become celebrated for the number and originality of its humorists. They spring up in the most unexpected places, and there seems to be no end to them. The latest to rush into print is a man at Silverton, Oregon, who explains himself in the following card published in the Appeal:

Little is one of the Appeal of May 20 [illegible] that my wife is leaving my bed and board, etc. This was intended as a joke but [illegible] Will say that my wife is still living with me happily and [illegible] I would be pleased to have my friends call and share our happiness. G. B. IRWIN.

Mr. Irwin was so full of humor that when it broke out it should have made him sicker than the smallpox would.

He should keep a bright lookout for the fool killer, for if that person should ever visit Silverton he will not be apt to [illegible] tempt [illegible] such jokes on his wife.

PERSONAL.

Senator Mitchell has gone to Washington.

Mr. Charles F. [illegible] went to the Sound on Saturday last on a business trip.

Secretary F. K. Arnold of the board of trade is expected home from the East to-morrow.

Col. John McCraken, who represented the Portland Board of Trade at the recent annual session of the National Board of Trade in Chicago, is due to-day.

Business of importance demanding Mr. Edward C. Frost's presence in Southern Oregon, he left on the through train for Ashland yesterday. This will be his first trip into that part of the state.

Rev. B. J. Rattray, formerly from Illinois, and a classmate of Vice President Holcomb of the Union Pacific railroad, but a resident of Oakland, Cal., for the past six years, came to Portland a few days since to take charge of the Second Baptist church of this city.

ANOTHER MAN SKIPS.

A Business Man Robs His Partner and Disappears From Tacoma.

Tacoma Ledger.

Another business man has skipped, leaving his partner in a financial fix. M. Jacobs, formerly of Chippewa Falls, Wisconsin, and A. Nichols, whose whereabouts is unknown, formed a partnership in Tacoma about the 1st of September, and began the business of blacksmithing and carriage making at Muntz's old establishment on Fourteenth street east of Pacific avenue. About the middle of September Mr. Jacobs went to Wisconsin to arrange some business affairs there which he had been formerly interested in, leaving Nichols in charge of the business. On the 18th he received a telegraphic message from this city that Nichols had disappeared. He immediately took the train and returned to Tacoma. He had suspected Nichols of crookedness and while East had made arrangements to bring out a bookkeeper with him. Since his return he has found that Nichols had given one note of the firm for $100, had collected money due the firm on account and in various ways put Mr. Jacobs "in a hole," in an amount ranging from $[illegible] to $1000.

Vegetables in Lewis County.

The Chehalis Nugget tells of big vegetables grown on the Skookum chuck, in the shape of beets, carrots and parsnips. The beet measured 24½ inches in length and [illegible] inches around the largest part, and weighed 17 pounds. The carrot measured 17 inches around the largest part and weighed 4 pounds and was 13 inches long. The parsnip measured 27 inches in length, 17 inches around and weighed 5½ pounds. The leaf of the parsnip measured 41 inches in length. Mr. Davis says this was not a good year for vegetables.

Commendable Action of Judge Fee.

Judge Fee at the late term of the circuit court for Malheur county, caused considerable wrath to be poured down on his head for the indiscriminate use of his little knife in cutting down fee bills of several officers of the court. One person put in a bill of $500 as receiver in a certain suit, but the judge thought $200 quite sufficient and allowed the last amount. Others fared equally as bad. Judge Fee is determined that the little commonwealth of Malheur county shall be protected, and so he has commenced the task. He is to be commended.

Child Killed.

Baker City Democrat: Friday afternoon the 12 year old son of James Carter, living near Express, was killed. The deceased and his younger brother went out on the hill near their home and engaged in the pastime of rolling rocks down the hill. It was while thus engaged and in endeavoring to loosen a large boulder, Sammy, the elder of the children, got on the lower side of the boulder and when it became dislodged from its position it knocked him down and rolled completely over him, breaking his spine and otherwise injuring him so that he died a short time after.

A Big Bond.

One of the largest bonds ever required of an administrator of an estate in Eastern Oregon is the bond to be filed by N. H. A. Mason, as administrator of the estate of the late Mr. Lux of the cattle firm of Lux & Miller, with range in Baker, Malheur and Grant counties. The bond is in the sum of $250,000. Mr. Mason has succeeded in securing sureties in the sum of $219,000, and the balance will be forthcoming in a few days.

A Short Session of Court.

The shortest term of circuit court ever held in Eastern Oregon was the session just held in Malheur county. Commencing last Monday the term was brought to a close on Friday and Judge Fee left immediately for his home in Pendleton. This termination of things was a great disappointment to numerous of the legal profession who gathered at Vale expecting to make a "clean up."

FROM FOREIGN LANDS.

Government Leaders Questioned About American Affairs.

TUPPER'S ANSWER TO MURCHISON

[illegible] Continental Powers Continuing Their Preparations for War—The [illegible] African [illegible]—Irish [illegible], Etc.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—In the house of commons to-night [illegible] correspondence on the American [illegible] the [illegible] of the government to make [illegible] treaty of 18[illegible] it was intended to suspend the enforcement of its provisions.

Sir James Fergusson, parliamentary secretary of the foreign office, [illegible] that the government will not publish any papers nor make any statement on the subject at present. A modus vivendi is in operation.

Smith, government leader, replying to a question, intimated that the government under the present circumstances was unable to make any statement regarding the appointment of a minister to Washington.

The house then went into committee of the whole and the debate on the land purchase bill was resumed.

Parnell proposed an amendment to the effect that no money be advanced for the purchase of more than one holding if such holding were rated at more than £20 yearly.

Balfour contended that the amendment would interfere with the smooth working of the plan of sale.

David Sheehy, nationalist member for South Galway, stopped the debate, appealing to the chairman on a question of privilege. He stated that he was leaving the house when an attendant handed him what appeared to be an ordinary visitor's card. Upon going into the lobby a constable from Ireland served him with a summons under the coercion act. He moved to report progress in order to give the house an opportunity to discuss this audacious breach of privilege.

Balfour deplored the incident and did not know under what authority it had happened.

On motion of Morley a committee was appointed to inquire into the circumstances of the incident, consisting of Sir Wm. Harcourt, Mr. Morley, Sir Charles Russell, Mr. Parnell, Mr. Timothy Healy, Home Secretary Matthews, Mr. Goschen, Mr. Madden, Sir Edward Clarke and Matthew Kelly.

Parnell's amendment was afterward lost by a vote of 154 to 111.

TUPPER'S ANSWER TO MURCHISON.

Sir Charles Too Wise a Bird for That Sort of Chaff.

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. [illegible].—The following letter was written by Sir Charles Tupper in answer to one received from "Charles F. Murchison of Pomona, Cal." Tupper's letter was written a month before the election:

LONDON, Oct. 5.

Dear Sir: I esteem it a high compliment that [illegible] letter of the [illegible] should have been addressed to me, and I may say that it was sent on to [illegible] my son in Ottawa. My official position as representative in Canada of Great Britain makes it quite impossible for me to offer any opinion on the [illegible] I am aware a hope is uppermost in everybody's mind that the matters in dispute between the two countries may be disposed of in a manner satisfactory to both, and your knowledge of public opinion in Canada will show you that the Canadian people most desire that their relations with the United States should be of the most cordial and friendly character. I am yours faithfully,

CHARLES TUPPER.

WAR PREPARATIONS CONTINUE.

Austria Contemplating the Mobilization of Her Landwehr.

VIENNA, Nov. 26.—At a meeting of the budget committee Count Welsersheimb said that it was necessary to expedite measures for enabling the government to mobilize the landwehr. Formerly vigorous and prompt use of the landwehr was not contemplated, but the present military and political situation demanded either an extensive increase of the army or such effective arrangements that the landwehr would be able to answer all calls upon troops in the field. The expenditures affixed to the budget for this purpose would amount to 1,041,400 florins, and included a sum to be used for the purchase of rifles, which were making at the rate of 30,000 per month.

FRANCE DRIFTING TOWARD A CRISIS.

BERLIN, Nov. 26.—The North German Gazette and almost all the other prominent German papers concur in the opinion that the affairs of France are drifting toward a crisis of which the consequences are incalculable.

BELGIUM ALSO PREPARING FOR WAR.

BRUSSELS, Nov. 26.—The Etoile says that the government will ask the chamber of deputies for a credit of 5,000,000 to complete armaments.

EAST AFRICAN TROUBLES.

Germany Refuses to Allow France to Punish the Slave Dealers.

BERLIN, Nov. 26.—The government has rejected France's proposal for a blockade of East Africa, on condition that the slave dhows and dealers under the French flag seized by other powers, be handed over to France for punishment.

The Emin Bey relief committee passed a resolution disavowing all connection between the committee and the East African company. It is expected the company will ask the reichstag for a loan of 10,000,000 marks.

BERLIN, Nov. 26.—Lieut. Wissman will wait on the emperor to resign his commission in the army and state his plans for the Emin Bey relief expedition.

HARRINGTON IN TROUBLE.

The Irish Editor Charged With Inciting Tenants to Adopt the Plan of Campaign.

DUBLIN, Nov. 26.—Edward Harrington, member of parliament, failed to appear to-day in answer to the summons charging him with inciting tenants to adopt the plan of campaign. Through his paper the Kerry Sentinel his counsel applied for a postponement in order that Harrington could attend the sittings of the Parnell commission in London. The magistrate refused to grant the application because the [illegible]. A warrant was issued for Harrington's arrest.

RUSSIA'S TARIFF.

Import Duties on Sheet Copper and Copper-Bottomed Ships Increased.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 26.—The import duty on sheet [illegible] has been increased to thirty copecks per pound. The duty on copper-bottomed ships has been fixed at twelve roubles for the first hundred tons and six for every additional hundred tons.

AFFAIRS IN SAMOA.

Consul Sewall Starts for His Post at Apia.

WASHINGTON, Nov. [illegible].—Consul Sewall, who has been in Washington for some time, left for his post at Apia last Saturday with full instructions from the state department. During his absence Vice Consul Lockhart has represented the United States in the Samoan islands.

Secretary Whitney says he has not yet received the dispatches that the steamer Mariposa probably brought the department from Captain Sears of the U. S. S. Adams at Samoa and unless something of much more than ordinary importance occurred dispatches would be forwarded by mail from San Francisco.

Third Assistant Secretary of State Moore stated to-day that no official information had been received there from the fresh [illegible] break in Samoa. He had read the newspapers and expected that official information would be received as soon as mail could arrive from San Francisco.

THE HAYTIAN TROUBLE.

The Commander of the Boston Says Americans Are in Danger.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—The secretary of the navy to-day received the following from Commander Ramsay, commanding the United States ship Boston, dated at [illegible]: "So far as I have been able to learn during the ten days the ship has been in the harbor of Port-au-Prince, the lives and property of American citizens residing there have been in no danger since the night of September [illegible]. On that occasion an American was accidentally wounded. I heard of no insult to the flag. The case of the schooner Wm. Jones has been satisfactorily settled and the provisional government of Hayti having expressed its willingness to refer the matter of the Haytian Republic to our government I could see no necessity for the ship to remain any longer at that port, and have sailed this day in accordance with the orders of the department of September 16 last."

At the navy department it was learned that Secretary Whitney was satisfied with Capt. Ramsay's report and would take no further action on the Haytian troubles until a fresh outbreak or request from the state department.

CABLE NOTES.

British Grain Trade Review.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—The Mark Lane Express in its review says: English wheat is firm; country flour scarce and prices against buyers. Foreign wheat is quiet. Stocks are increasing at Liverpool and prices are [illegible] cental lower. Corn is quiet, round is [illegible] higher. American mixed is weak. Linseed has declined 6d.

The Pope and the Irish Question.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—A Dublin dispatch says that the news association has been reliably informed that the pope will insist upon issuing a second rescript on the Irish question. The Irish bishops will be shortly summoned to Rome.

Passed a Restless Night.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—John Bright had a restless night. His lungs are in a worse condition this morning and his temperature higher.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—Bright grows hourly weaker.

Afraid of Provoking Cleveland.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—The Daily News says it regrets Lord Salisbury's decision to delay the appointment of a successor to Sackville West. This course, it says, may provoke President Cleveland to withdraw Minister Phelps.

Difficulties Settled.

ZANZIBAR, Nov. 26.—The question regarding the fugitives harbored by the mission station at Mombasa was settled to the satisfaction of the natives. Arrangements have been made to secure the freedom of the slaves.

Manchester Martyrs.

DUBLIN, Nov. 26.—Thousands of persons attended the demonstration in Glasnevin cemetery yesterday at the monument to the Manchester martyrs. The proceedings were orderly.

Deadly Election Riots in Servia.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—A dispatch from Belgrade says serious election riots occurred to-day in Servia. Several lives were lost and many public buildings were demolished.

Rifled Guns for the Pacific.

OTTAWA, Nov. 26.—The Dominion government has ordered two new forty pound rifled guns from the imperial government for use on the Pacific coast.

An Unfortunate Newspaper.

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Nov. 26.—The offices of the [illegible] County Journal newspaper were burned. Loss £100,000. The offices were the finest in Australia.

The Belgium Strike Increasing.

BRUSSELS, Nov. 26.—The strike of the miners in Belgium is spreading. Gendarmes and guards are patroling the troubled districts.

A Protest By Russia.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—The Russian government has protested against the erection by Roumania of forts at Forschanie and Galatz.

Large Fire in Cuba.

HAVANA, Nov. 26.—Advices from [illegible] de Salean state that forty-two houses have been destroyed by fire. Loss, $[illegible].

A Conference With the Emperor.

BERLIN, Nov. 26.—Emperor William gave audience to-day to the president and vice-president of the reichstag.

A Duchess Dead.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—The Duchess of Sutherland is dead.

Better Than a Hero.
"What a coward that Major Smith is," said Jones to Robinson, "why, the very sight of gunpowder would make him ill. How did he ever manage to become an officer in the army?" "Don't say anything against Smith," answered Robinson, "he once saved my life." "Saved your life! Impossible! What do you mean?" "I mean that I was in the first stages of consumption; I was losing strength and vitality every day with that terrible disease when Smith advised me to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I had tried all kinds of medicines without success, and my physician had given me no hope, yet here I am, as well as ever a man was, and I owe my life to Smith and to the wonderful remedy he recommended."

Cattle in Idaho.

An Idaho paper says: Several bunches of cattle have been sold lately, but the prices are extremely low. H. S. Woolley bought 300 head at prices ranging from $2 10 to $[illegible] per cwt. White & Sons bought 160 head at the following figures: Two-year-old steers $16, three year old steers $20, fat cows, $[illegible] per head. The price of grain is getting higher and the price of cattle is getting proportionately lower. If the present depression in the price of cattle continues much longer stock raising will cease to be either a [illegible] or profitable business.

ON HIS FEET.
A Profitable Experiment Which All Should Make.
An ordinary occurrence would be no inducement to me to lend my name to the nostrums that flood the land everywhere, but when conscientious men place before suffering humanity the "Balm of Gilead," which I call Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla, they deserve to prosper and be blessed. For many months I had been troubled with dyspepsia in its worst form and indigestion. Before I tried Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla I spent many dollars for different remedies, none of which brought me an hour's relief. I was so prostrated and my misery was so great at times it seemed as if I should die. In fact I wanted to. In three days after I commenced using it I did not wish to die, for Joy's was in that bottle and the second one put me on my feet. It is the finest thing [illegible] the grave of many [illegible]. Very gratefully yours,

JOTTINGS ABOUT PORTLAND.

Col. Chapman Stricken With Paralysis—Thanksgiving For the Orphans.

Two Badly Scared Men—Accident on Fourth Street—The Moody Meetings—New Savings Bank—Another Street Railway

SUFFERING FROM PARALYSIS.—The many friends of Col. W. W. Chapman will learn with regret that the old gentleman is suffering from a stroke of paralysis. Saturday, Col. Chapman came down town to transact some business and rode to his home at the corner of Twelfth and Jefferson in a street car. While on the way home he felt a peculiar sensation along his right leg. This feeling [illegible] spread and increased in intensity until it reached his right side and [illegible] Saturday evening Col. Chapman [illegible] the [illegible] right [illegible] Col. Chapman's health has been [illegible] for [illegible] He has been actively engaged in [illegible] in a law case for some weeks and has probably overtaxed his [illegible] Col. Chapman [illegible] the oldest pioneers of Oregon, [illegible] who will regret to hear of his [illegible] and who will hope to [illegible] on [illegible].

A COUPLE OF SCARED SEAMEN.—Yesterday forenoon M. H. [illegible] first mate and James Kelly, [illegible] of the crew of the steamer Okanagan [illegible] at the Ash street wharf, [illegible] to make some repairs to the wheel of the [illegible] were in between the spokes and [illegible] astride the shaft for getting [illegible] to make the wheel fast as is [illegible] They had not been at work [illegible] when the steamer Alarm came [illegible] and the waves from her wheel caused the Okanagan's wheel to make a partial revolution and leading them to suppose that the engineer had turned on the steam and [illegible] to start up. A chorus of most unearthly [illegible] proceeded from the wheel house [illegible] followed by the two men who [illegible] were badly scared and who will never undertake to work on a steamboat wheel again without first tying it fast.

A CLOSE CALL FOR ROTH.—A sausage maker [illegible] had a narrow escape on Fourth street yesterday. He was delivering his wares to one of his customers when he heard the bell of an approaching locomotive ringing. He rushed out, jumped into his cart and started to drive off when another vehicle came along and got between him and the sidewalk and as the locomotive came up on the other side his horse shied and the locomotive struck his cart upsetting it and throwing him out in the mud. When he scrambled to his feet his horse and cart had been dragged about twenty feet by the engine which then stopped. The horse was extricated and it was found that both the ankles of its hind feet were badly cut and it could hardly walk. The poor brute was taken to a stable and a veterinary surgeon expressed the opinion that it might be cured.

REMEMBER THE ORPHANS.—Thanksgiving is only two days ahead and most people are already beginning to think of the dinner which with many is the event of the day. As has been customary the Ladies' Relief Society have again enlisted their labors in procuring for the orphan waifs at the Children's Home a Thanksgiving dinner. Besides the dinner it has been the good will of the people to remember The Home with other gifts of a more durable and substantial character. Such remembrances are always gratefully received. The wagons for The Home will go around to-morrow (Wednesday). A large number of people have already kindly offered donations, and these will be gathered up to-morrow. It must be remembered that donations of any kind that a generous and cheerful heart may suggest will be acceptable.

A USEFUL DOG.—The somewhat unusual spectacle of a dog leading a horse was seen on First street yesterday. The dog which was a handsome spotted setter had the end of the halter rope attached to the horse in his mouth and trotted along ahead [illegible] walking fast [illegible] kept [illegible] all the time. The pair [illegible] all the way down First street from [illegible] and turned up Ash. At Ash and Third they met a team and as a truck was [illegible] the sidewalk the street was blocked. The dog jumped on the sidewalk and the horse followed him and they came pretty near getting tangled in the rope but as soon as the team passed the dog led the horse out of the street again and pursued his journey to the stable farther on.

THE MOODY MEETINGS.—The committee having in charge the Moody meetings held their meeting as advertised in THE OREGONIAN of yesterday. A full attendance was present and the report of the committee on looking after the pavilion was handed in and taken up. The committee were of the opinion that not as many people could hear in the pavilion as in the tabernacle as [illegible] seating arrangements gives the tabernacle seats for 2700. The seats in the tabernacle will be changed at once to give the increased capacity and everything done to make the congregation comfortable. The gospel choir under Mr. Williams has grown to nearly 200 voices and the entire arrangements are successful to a marked degree.

A NEW SAVINGS BANK.—The Portland Real Estate Co., 4½ Washington street have [illegible] an original idea in the line of a savings bank. They propose that any respectable person with $10 or more shall put it in a said bank or more correctly speaking into real estate and in furtherance of this view they have laid out the Second Electric addition on Hawthorne avenue in lots 50 by 125 feet, many of them nicely fruited, and while they do not guarantee 6 per cent per annum (like the ordinary savings bank) they predict that purchasers will receive a return of about 8 per cent a month from their investment. Ten dollars down and $10 a month without interest takes a lot, and you do not have to hunt through the timber to find it.

BEARING FRUITS.—The German Immigration Society which has been sending out a great many circulars is beginning to see the result of the work done. The society has been [illegible] by many German papers from New Orleans to New York and yesterday thirty-seven letters were received making inquiries concerning this state as a field for immigration. The society looks after the welfare of Germans coming here and procures them situations or puts them in the way of finding such lands as they desire free of cost. There are a number of good men and active workers in the society and they [illegible] much good.

W. C. T. U. MEETING.—The W. C. T. U. met at their new hall No. 178½ First street [illegible] afternoon. After preliminary business it was agreed to have a basket social next Saturday night. The mothers' meeting was then opened, the subject being "What is a mother's part in the education of her children?" It was well discussed by Mesdames McDonald, Cooper, Miller, Townsend and [illegible]. Seven new members were received. The superintendent of juvenile work was requested to organize a band of hope in this hall next Saturday at 3 o'clock.

[illegible].—On Saturday morning last Mr. D. C. Bogart, crier in Judge Stearns' court, residing in Holladay's addition to East Portland, while getting his morning paper slipped on the steps leading to his house and fell. He was in court all that day but suffered much pain from his fall. Yesterday he was confined to his bed and reports [illegible] that he is seriously hurt. Mr. Bogart is [illegible] years of age but in the face of his age he has been as sprightly as any man about the court house.

SIDEWALK WOODSHED.—On Third street, just below A, some economical citizen has several cords of split slab wood piled along the sidewalk and roofed over with boards and tin. The wood obstructed the street for some time but is now out of the way on the sidewalk where pedestrians have no business. If everybody had a wood house on the sidewalk the cost of getting in a winter's supply would be materially reduced and there would probably be no objections made by the city officials.

THANKS FOR DELICACIES.—The patients at the smallpox hospital desire to return special thanks to Mrs. M. J. Burrows for the basket of fruit and delicacies she sent them a few days ago. The thought that some kind people are thinking of them must be some consolation to persons afflicted with the smallpox.

A GENEROUS RESPONSE.—Chief of Police Parrish while talking with some friends in the Gilman house yesterday afternoon made the suggestion that something should be done to give the patients at the smallpox hospital a Thanksgiving dinner. The suggestion was at once taken up by S. Heimsheimer and in a few minutes having made the rounds through the hotel and at Jo Myers's he returned with $31. The money was given to the chief of police who will turn it over to the smallpox hospital with the compliments of the kind donors.

A BURNING CHIMNEY.—A chimney fire at house of Mr. A. Sands No. 204 Third street called out a small detachment of the fire department about a quarter of 6 o'clock last night. On arriving at the scene of the fire the firemen looked merrily on while the sparks flew skyward like myriads of stars. It took but a few minutes for [illegible] out to burn out. The danger was then passed and the firemen returned from whence they came not having been called upon to take any part in the proceeding.

THE CHINESE HOSPITAL.—A delegation of Chinese merchants accompanied by Chief of Police Parrish called on the county court yesterday and asked the county to set aside a tract of land on the poor farm for the erection of a hospital where the Chinese poor and sick may be taken care of. The court and the deputation of the merchants will visit the farm to-morrow to see if they can agree on a site. The hospital will be built at the expense of the Chinese.

OREGON APPLES [illegible].—The Apples shipped to Australia some time since by Mr. William Dunbar have been heard from. Our antipodean friends complain that they were too large, on which account there were not enough of them in a box to afford a profit by retailing. They also say the apples were too soft and did not come to hand in good order as the apples from the hill district of California. They advise that in case any more apples are shipped to send smaller and harder ones.

ANOTHER STREET RAILWAY.—The county commissioners' court yesterday gave C. W. Brown a fifty years' franchise to build and maintain a single or double track street railway along the county road known as Hawthorne avenue on the east side of the river. He will use two and one-half miles of the road. The conditions are that the fare shall not be more than 5 cents, that the road shall be completed before November 1, 1889, that the road bed shall be kept in repair.

SOCIETY ORGANIZED.—The young people of the Hall street M. E. church held a meeting in the church parlor on the 21st inst. and organized a literary, musical and social society. The following officers were elected unanimously: President, Jas. B. Phelps; vice president, Annie Cline; secretary, Sadie A. Goves; treasurer, Mrs. John B. Tanner. The next meeting of the society will be held on Friday, November 30. All strangers are cordially invited to attend.

HER DAMAGE WAS $900.—Mr. William Dunbar has received a dispatch from China informing him that the damage to his bark the Kitty from the typhoon which she encountered in the China seas was $900 from the loss of spars, sails and rigging. The Kitty will go on the berth at Hong Kong about the first of December to load for Portland. She will bring over a large quantity of manila hemp for the Portland Cordage Works.

THE OREGON PACIFIC WANTS TO SETTLE.—The Oregon Pacific Railroad Company has made a proposition to Contractor Nelson Bennett who is suing it for $551,825 for breach of contract etc., as explained in THE OREGONIAN a few days ago, to compromise on reasonable terms. Mr. Bennett has made no response to the offer yet. What might be considered reasonable terms will be known if negotiations are entered into.

SELLWOOD FAVORS CONSOLIDATION.—Albina has been included in the proposition to consolidate Portland and East Portland but so far as known no one has thought of bringing Sellwood into the big city. County Commissioner Ben I. Smith of that place said yesterday: "Do the people of Sellwood desire to be annexed to Portland? Well, yes. We are strongly in favor of consolidation."

LOCAL BOARD ORGANIZED.—The American Building and Loan Association of Minneapolis organized a local board at Pendleton, Oregon, on November 24 and the following officers were elected: W. S. Byers, president; B. Sharon, secretary; S. P. Sturgis, treasurer; J. M. Leezer, appraiser; Henry J. Bean, attorney; and W. D. Fletcher, J. M. Leezer, J. M. Nicker on directors.

LARGE REAL ESTATE TRANSFER.—The five acre tract of land on the [illegible] county road which was reported in THE OREGONIAN as having been sold by A. H. Johnson, Esq., to the Real Estate Title and Trust Company for $30,000 was in reality sold for $31,500 to Mr. M. G. Griffin, the Real Estate Title and Trust Company acting as his agent in examining the title and making the transfer.

THE SAVINGS BANK, connected with the Northwest Loan and Trust Co. is now located at 50 First street in new and commodious quarters. It is in charge of careful conservative men who have the interest of depositors at heart. Connected with this institution also is a banking department, accounts subject to checks are kept and interest allowed on time deposits.

LEWIS BRONAUGH BURIED.—The funeral of Lewis Judson Bronaugh who died of typhoid fever early yesterday morning at the residence of his parents, Judge and Mrs. Earl C. Bronaugh, took place at 10 o'clock yesterday forenoon. The decedent was aged 11 years 9 months and 5 days and was loved by his friends and respected by all who knew him.

A NOVEL FEATURE.—Each lady attending the ball to be given by Company I Thanksgiving night will be presented with a pair of black kids. Great interest is being manifested by the members of the company, and everybody who attends is sure to enjoy themselves. Tickets for couples one dollar.

NEARLY COMPLETED.—The mill of the Portland Linseed Oil Company is rapidly nearing completion. Nearly all the machinery is in place and the remainder will soon be on hand. It is expected that the mill will be started up before New Year's.

A DOUBLE SALE.—In addition to the $2.75 bonnet mentioned they have trimmed for to-day six dozen toques at the Bouquet, all at the same price. The toque sale was a success and so will the bonnets be, to judge from yesterday's inquiries.

HYMEN'S TORCH.—Marriage licenses were granted yesterday for Joseph [illegible] Webber and Anna E. Mansfield, Marion Wilcox and Maria Dalton, Gustav Siercks and Elizabeth Boettcher, Louis Schmidt and Susie Lammert.

WILL SELL—54 inch camel's hair cloth, 54 inch canvas cloth, both all wool, 50 cents per yard at I. Selling & Co's. Regular price one dollar, but that makes no difference, 50 cents is the price to-day.

TEACHERS LEARNING.—Mrs. Pollard met the primary teachers of the city at the High school yesterday afternoon and started them on the way of the new system of primary instruction.

QUIMBY HOUSE.—Mr. Quimby is now prepared to meet all his old patrons as well as new ones and guarantees them the best treatment at the most reasonable terms.

FOR SHOALWATER BAY.—The steamer Dolphin will only make two more regular weekly trips to Shoalwater bay. After these she will only run as business justifies.

PLEASANT PARTY.—Co. L, O. N. G., are to give a ball on Thanksgiving night that promises to equal any given this season. Ticket for lady and gentleman $1.

A WORLD'S DISPLAY.—Ten life sized wax figures are now on exhibition in Arthur Kohn's corner window, corner Second and Morrison streets.

SEVEN TO TEN DOLLARS.—Buys wonderful boys' suits at Kohn's for ages 10 to 18 years, corner Second and Morrison streets.

STEAMER ALLIANCE.—Sails for Gray's Harbor Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. Freight received at foot of C street.

REMEMBER.—The entertainment and bazaar given by the young ladies at Academy hall to-morrow evening.

TURKEY RAFFLE.—At the Quimby house saloon Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, Nov. 27 and 28.

THE CITY'S PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

Beginning With the Harrison Street and Failing Buildings

Only Two New Teachers in Each Place—The Attendance Growing—Drawing and Marching—Views on the Pollard System

The presence of smallpox in the city and the almost universal practice of vaccination entailing as it does severe illness in so many cases has seriously affected the enrollment of the city schools. The attendance given in this and succeeding articles is taken from the concluding days of October.

THE FAILING SCHOOL

Since the opening of this building and the transfer of its small nucleus from the Harrison street it has steadily increased and now numbers within four of the enrollment of the older one, that is, 581 pupils.

The building comprises twelve recitation rooms, library and principal's office. There are thirteen teachers under Miss Burnham's [illegible] Miss Kittridge working as assistant. Miss Powell [illegible] eighth grade room which now contains 115 children.

Two new teachers are here this term—Mr. [illegible] in the sixth A class who comes from East Portland and is apparently adapting herself nicely to changed conditions, and Miss [illegible] of Wisconsin who occupies the post of principal's assistant. She is a lady of a good deal of experience and is doing well. She teaches the two classes of the second grade which is the highest in the Failing school, what few first grade scholars the district affords being provided for elsewhere.

The other teachers are all doing well, being in their old rooms and familiar to the schools.

The best time to visit the school is at 1 P. M. when the scholars all assemble in the commodious lower hall and for a few minutes sing and march. These exercises are held in concert with the occasional introduction of a recitation or solo from one of the school. After the singing, accompanied by Miss Davis of the seventh grade, the pupils march and countermarch to their respective rooms and the same orderly procedure is followed at dismissal, except by the smart boy and strong minded girl who now and then find their way to the principal's office.

Failing school under the experienced supervision of Miss Turner has made always a very satisfactory showing in drawing. The portfolio which attracted such general interest at the national teachers' association at San Francisco is still on exhibition in Miss Burnham's cabinet. The teaching in this school is all done by the teachers direct, all the old teachers understanding it and Miss Salisbury having soon mastered the system. The rooms are almost all supplied and made cheerful with flowers displayed on tables and stands. Miss Davis has several trees and plants including roses etc. Miss Davidson has an abutilon tree in bloom and a large array of other flowers.

HARRISON STREET

This building is not as commodious as the Failing school, having a fewer number of rooms and much less space of halls. This latter defect chiefly interferes with the well established exercise of marching, though on pleasant days the youthful battalion can be marshaled on the planked playground and maneuvered into their respective rooms. Calisthenic exercises have to take the place to a great extent of the marching, especially in the more crowded rooms.

Twelve teachers under Prof. Pratt's principalship, who has grown gray in the service of this same school, here teach the young idea how to shoot, with various degrees of success. The corps is much the same as last year—two new teachers only being engaged, Miss Cooper, who is well known in Portland, and Mrs. L. H. Lusk of Sacramento, California. The latter is doing the best she can with the unruly boys of the sixth grade, whose repeated change of teachers has not seemed to civilize them any or reduce their unequaled delegation of candidates for the principal's correcting hand. Miss McCarthy has been promoted from the Sixth to the Fourth grade, the other teachers retaining their former positions.

The drawing is taught by the teachers excepting in the first grade, which requires Miss Turner's personal care. The first grade pupils of the Harrison, Park and Failing districts are divided into classes, one of which goes to Prof. Pratt, the other to Prof. Crawford at the Park school. These gentlemen alternate with the A and B classes of the grade, the February graduating class coming from the Park, the June from the Harrison. This causes the pupils farther walks but increases the efficiency of their instruction.

The attendance of the schools has never come up to its old number before the Failing contingent was taken away to its own quarters. Nearly 700 were then crowded into these rooms while the present enrollment is 585. Twelve were lost to help form Miss Carrie Lindsay's extra room in the High school. The recent absentees are fast coming back and will probably about all be in the Monday following the Thanksgiving vacation.

The fires through which the Harrison street school has passed have destroyed things not so easily replaced as blackboards and patent chairs. For the past eight or nine years, ever since Walter Dodd graduated, it has been the custom to hang in the principal's room or private office the likeness of that choice of the graduating class who leaves for the high school with most honor. They have not been replaced except in two instances, that of Lizzie Gates 1880 and Belle Crocker 1882, the last named hangs in the principal's private office and is the work in crayon of the young lady herself. The photograph of Lily Durham, 1888, makes the present list of pictures three in number. Another loss by the fires has been Prof. Pratt's private books. "I lost about $250 worth by the first fire," said he, "and $75 worth by the second and now I only keep a few necessary reference books here, the remainder at home."

THE POLLARD SYSTEM

Conversation with the teachers at the two schools does not reveal as unreserved endorsement of Mrs. Pollard's system as some may have supposed.

"The teachers in my primary rooms felt," said Miss Burnham, "that they would like to understand the new system. They do not know enough about it yet to endorse it but will give it thorough investigation."

"My position in the matter was," said Prof. Pratt, "that I should like to see the system tried in the seventh grade. Mrs. Pollard, I am informed, has not been able to get her system introduced in Chicago and its efficiency is yet a matter of doubt. It will be fairly tried."

VALUABLE SPECIMENS.—M. I. C. Dillman of Spokane, who has been for three years active and efficient in the development of the many fine properties in which he is interested in the Colville, Metalline, Kootenai, Coeur d'Alene, Salmon river and Wolfe Lodge districts, is at the Esmond. Mr. Dillman brings some very handsome specimens which were examined with interest yesterday by mining men from the Spokane and [illegible] mine of the Warm Springs camp, Kootenai district, [illegible] where a number of mines in which Portland people are interested [illegible]. One piece of ore Mr. Dillman has with him he broke from a 500 pound specimen he has in Spokane, which will assay from forty to fifty ounces to the ton of silver. His specimens from the Spokane mine will go some ten or twelve ounces higher. Mr. Dillman will take an interest in showing the specimens to any mining people who care to call and see them. He will be here a few days, after which he will leave for Tacoma.

THERE GOES A [illegible].—These words shouted in an excited tone attracted the attention of an OREGONIAN reporter crossing Washington street on First street yesterday. Looking in the direction from whence the clarion voice appeared to come a large turkey cutting eccentric figures in mid air greeted his vision. The turkey had escaped from a game market near by, and a curious crowd soon collected to see the excitement. Notwithstanding that it had been penned up in a coop, the flying powers of this bird were particularly good. The turkey flew to the top of a building and there from its eminence looked complacently down upon the crowd below. This cold cruel stare of the bird proved too much for the forbearance of the onlookers, and one by one they were seen to take their leave. It was not learned what means were employed to induce the turkey to leave its lofty perch.

PROGRESSIVE PORTLAND.

What a Writer in the Chicago "Inter-Ocean" Has to Say.

Very Complimentary Letter—Her Growth, Prospects, Wealth and Population—Manufacturing Interests—Commercial Supremacy, Etc.

No pent up Utica contracts your powers
But the whole boundless continent is yours

Mr. Leubrie, a special correspondent of the Chicago Inter Ocean, writing to that journal from Portland, gives a very complimentary description of this city. The article, which covers nearly five columns, appears in the Inter Ocean of Nov. 21. Mr. Leubrie commences his elaborate article as follows:

It has been only in the past few years that the vanguard of that vast army of immigrants moving as with one common impulse toward the

LAND OF THE SETTING SUN

Have reached in their journey westward Oregon, that most marvelous and attractive commonwealth in the galaxy of mighty states. The revelation of its manifold resources, so potent in the upbuilding of a grand empire and so conducive to the attainment of individual wealth and municipal prosperity, has been a theme of surprise and wonderment to all who have investigated the resources, products, present status and future possibilities of matchless Oregon. It has within the confines of its vast area a combination of agricultural and mineral wealth supplemented with commercial and manufacturing arteries prolific with industrious and remunerative labor that must perforce give it within the next decade a commanding position as an industrial and commercial empire. The city of Portland

[illegible] AND ITS UTILITIES

Situated on the banks of the Willamette river, is the geographical and commercial heart of the state, through which and from which the vast organism of mighty business enterprises receive their propelling force and life, and to which all sections pay tribute as the dominant sovereign of her vast aggregation of prosperous interests. The importance of Portland as a natural reservoir of mercantile propulsion can best be estimated by the mention of the fact that this city even in the early period of 1858, with a population of only 2000, had in its midst thirteen jobbing houses, the trade of which took in not alone the broad boundaries of Oregon, but also comprehended in their scope of operations the adjacent territories and their network of ramifying arteries of commerce. Portland to-day is credited with possessing a jobbing and mercantile trade in excess of $75,000,000, and judging the future record by her present status, it is not unfair or unreasonable to assume that the year 1900 will see this large volume of trade at least doubled in value.

Portland is favorably circumstanced with a splendid system of railroads and navigation facilities that have undoubtedly been

IMPORTANT FACTORS

In impelling the city forward and upward on the plane of an unbounded prosperity. She has a network of railroads comprising the Northern Pacific, Oregon Railway and Navigation Company, Southern Pacific Railroad, Portland & Willamette Valley Railway, besides some minor roads.

Portland is environed by a number of fine navigable streams, among which the Columbia and Willamette are most prominent. Its contiguity to the Pacific ocean makes it the chief seaport town of the state and in fact, of this entire vast inland empire. From here ply steamships, boats and sailing vessels that cover the entire Puget sound and that reach San Francisco, British Columbia, Alaska and all the seaports of the world.

MANUFACTURING INTERESTS

The article then devotes a good deal of space to the manufacturing establishments of Portland and among other things says:

It will no doubt be a surprise to multitudinous readers that Portland has a multiplicity of industrial interests with an aggregate invested capital of $10,157,000, employing 4000 operatives, who receive annually $2,693,5[illegible] and whose manufactured products foot up the immense sum of $17,[illegible]00,000 yearly. This does not include the labor of skilled workmen such as carpenters, painters, plumbers, brickmasons, paperhangers, engineers and others engaged in daily physical toil that do not come under the head of manufacturing employees, which if properly estimated would foot up fully $2,000,000, making $5,000,000 in round numbers as the amount paid in this city to the horny handed son of labor during the year for wages. The industries are numerous and comprise almost every conceivable line of operations.

PORTLAND'S SITUATION

Portland has an unlimited supply of coal, wood, timber, limestone, gold, silver, copper, lead and iron ores, wheat, wool, hops, flax, pork, beef, mutton, hides, and numerous other raw materials found and produced in the Northwest which can be concentrated in this city cheaper than at any other point.

Situated at the head of deep water navigation on the Columbia and Willamette river, it is the nearest seaport to the great valleys of those two important streams. This is what has brought to its present position as the metropolis and center of wealth, population and trade of varied resources and a vast area. This position it acquired when the rivers were great highways of travel and commerce, and it has been more firmly fixed by the construction of railroads, which not only make this city the Western terminus of all the great transcontinental lines which penetrate this region at all, but give it communication with every portion of the vast empire of which it is the commercial head. Some of these roads go to other points but they all come to Portland where they find at once their present greatest traffic and hope for future growth. It is natural then that at this point should gradually be established a large majority of those great manufacturing industries which the Northwest will undoubtedly soon possess, since the great essentials of an ocean port, railroad facilities and nearness to the largest areas of population are found here more fully than at any other point, while all other advantages and facilities are possessed in as great a degree as by any other place which might be selected.

Considerable space is devoted to the Oswego Iron Works, its operations, prospects, capital stock, etc. Speaking of the banking business Mr. Leubrie says:

Its banking facilities are on a par with its vast aggregation of personal and commercial wealth. It has ten banking institutions with a grand total of bank deposits exceeding $21,000,000. Capital employed $5,375,000. Surplus and undivided profits $1,932,318.82. The credit of the city is excellent. In 1886 it sold upon competitive bids, following advertising, $500,000 water bonds. The sale was made Dec. 31 and resulted in a premium of $39,300 to the city on the $500,000, the premium per cent ranging from 6½ to 8¾, these bonds bearing 5 per cent interest and running thirty years.

HOME ENTERPRISES

Much space is covered with describing the many enterprises, features, etc., of the city. The writer says:

Portland's metropolitan aspect is partly evidenced by her [illegible] miles of improved streets, costing in their construction $1,[illegible]0,457.16.

As indicative of the progress and enterprise of the people of Portland it is but proper to mention that they are large contributors to home enterprises and all manner of public improvement. They have subscribed nearly $2,000,000 since the first of the present year toward various enterprises embraced in the following list:

New hotel	$500,000
Industrial fair	[illegible]
Cable railway	[illegible]
Two line street railway	100,000
New linseed oil works	100,000
Cordage works	100,000
Coast steamship company	60,000
Presbyterian church	[illegible]
Grace M. E. church	30,000
Jewish synagogue	[illegible]
Opera house	40,000
Library building	30,000
To secure immigration	30,000
Tannery	[illegible]
Debt paid for Y. M. C. A.	4,500

Portland in 1880 had a population of [illegible],000. To-day she has 60,000 and the year 1900 will give her at the present rate of increase fully 150,000 inhabitants.

The city water works, the postal statistics for the past year, total receipts of produce, etc., are also dwelt upon exhaustively. The article contains

RELATING TO THIS CITY,

Since 1882, 52 plats of additions, representing 9250 lots, have been filed in the clerk's office. In 1888 there were thirteen plats filed, representing 3660 lots.

Expended in maintaining public schools of Portland in 1887 $101,3[illegible]; valuation of school buildings $500,000.

Portland's paid fire department is unequaled for efficiency. Seventy-two men are on the pay roll. Apparatus: Four engines, 2 hook and ladders, and 8 hose carts.

The police force of Portland numbers 50 men.

Portland has 24 churches, including those in course of erection and improvement, the outlay on which will reach $[illegible],000.

The year 1889 will exhibit improvements in this city aggregating an expenditure of upward of $1,000,000.

The number of vessels and steamers documented at Portland in 1887 was [illegible].

The streets are lighted with 600 incandescent and 24 arc lights.

The city's indebtedness January 1, 1888, was $100,000.

Estimated immigration to the state in 1888 is about 40,000.

There are over 70 lodges and associations in the corporate limits of Portland.

Portland's water supply is taken [illegible] miles south of the city and with hydraulic power is equal to supply [illegible] other cities of its size. A commission directs the management of the water supply, the net of which is [illegible] annually.

The social nature of Portland's society is one of the charming characteristics of her people. Hospitality, courtesy, attentions and friendship [illegible] are the rule.

The public library of Portland consists of 17,000 volumes, [illegible] works of the best authors. A new building will soon be erected in keeping with the importance of the city.

WHOLESALE TRADE

The O. R. & N. Co.'s [illegible] bridge is described and highly complimented as a splendid specimen of architecture. The wholesale and retail trade is mentioned at much length. Says the writer: The extensive wholesale trade in Portland embraces all lines in commercial life, more groceries than any other line. One whole street front, covering a distance of about seven to nine blocks, is given up wholly to the wholesale trade. This trade covers a large area of country, viz.: the eastern portion of Montana, the territory of Washington, the state of Oregon and the entire trade of Alaska, now assuming proportions of magnitude by reason of the flattering developments in mining.

INDUSTRIAL FAIR BUILDING

Speaking of this structure the writer says:

There is now building in this city an Industrial Fair structure which will have a frontage of 400 feet, a depth of 200 feet, besides ample room for all show stock. It is of brick and wood and two stories in hight. The first story will be devoted to fine arts and a tropical garden or floral hall will occupy a space 200 by 100. The stock for the building, $1[illegible],000, was subscribed very quickly. Five states and territories aside from all British Columbia will be the visitors at the North Pacific Industrial Fair in this city.

The hotels and public schools of Portland are spoken of at much length. The various private educational institutions of the city are also highly complimented.

THE JOURNALISTIC FIELD

Portland, says the writer, is decidedly a bonanza for the journalistic fraternity. There are now nineteen newspapers in this field of journalism. The leading journal is THE OREGONIAN, which is to the Pacific Northwest what the Inter Ocean is in its chosen field of action, potent, all powerful and supreme. THE OREGONIAN is typographically, mechanically and editorially a perfect model of metropolitan journalism. It has a splendid service both locally and in all of its other departments. Editorially it is brainy and brilliant and the avant courier of all that is progressive, liberal and well timed in the history of the city. Portland and the state of Oregon owes much of its present status to the noble and energetic efforts made now, as it has in the past, toward the upbuilding of the city and commonwealth.

The Evening Telegram is, as its name implies, a twilight star which dazzles the world with its brilliant scintillations six days in the week. There are other publications, spicy, newsy and ably representing the financial, commercial, industrial and social interests of this city and state.

CLIMATIC FEATURES

The climatic features of Oregon are not understood or thoroughly comprehended by the majority of the people in the East. They associate in their minds the impressions obtained from unworthy and prejudiced sources of information and assume that Oregon has an undesirable and unpleasant climate in the fall and winter season. Now the fact is that Oregon has, take it all in all, the most salubrious and most equable climate in the world, freer from disease, dust, poisonous germs, dampness and extremes of heat and cold than any other portion of the United States. Rheumatism is

A COMPARATIVE STRANGER HERE.

So are catarrhal troubles and pulmonary complaints. Health is the rule and disease the exception. Cyclones, blizzards and electrical storms are unknown. In summer the temperature rarely exceeds 85 degrees and during the winter it is almost invariably in the forties. The rainy seasons, so called, are simply light gentle rains and mists that fall upon the inhabitants of this state as pleasantly and as mildly as the gentle dews of heaven. Take the people of Portland as an example and in no place can one find such robust, healthful specimens of physical manhood and womanhood.

NO BOOMS—STEADY GROWTH

Portland has had no booms. She desires none. Her growth has been steady, untrammeled by the artificial aids of the wily real estate speculator or the [illegible] schemes of the opulent property owners. When it is taken into consideration that prices here are comparatively lower than any other city in the United States one can appreciate the good sense of the citizens of Portland in thwarting the pestiferous project of tricky boomers and real estate sharks. Realty under such conditions is always a paying and desirable investment and must perforce enhance in value as the city increases in commercial importance. Values in the past have regulated themselves in this normal way and will continue to ascend in the scale of values just so much as the natural condition of affairs here warrant their upward ascendency. The real estate sales of Portland in 1887 aggregated $6,000,000. The writer judges that they have been fully that much if not more this year.

The limited space accorded to the writer precludes him from devoting any space to a description of the costly and

and private residences of the city, the beautiful parks, boulevards, public places of amusement and all the other noteworthy and commendable features which give Portland such an indescribable charm and attractiveness.

LOCAL NOTES

Ben F. Rollins, justice of the peace at Powell's valley precinct, has resigned.

Mr. William Andrus, who has been at the Cascade springs for some time, is nearly restored to health and will probably return to this city this week.

ATTEMPTED ASSAULT.—Between 12 and 1 o'clock last night a hack driver who had been over to East Portland reported that while over on the corner of Fourth and G streets a man suddenly emerged from the side of the road and made a vicious grab at one of his horses' heads, attempting to stop him, undoubtedly with felonious intent. The horse being startled shied away and the team [illegible]. At the corner of [illegible] he was again approached by another man, likely enough a confederate of the first, who made a similar attempt with like success. The driver made no effort to pursue but contented himself with rapidly hurrying homeward.

RAN AGROUND.—The S. G. Reed arrived from Astoria yesterday morning about three hours late, owing to running aground at Kalama. A dense fog was on the river and caused the accident. The Reed went aground pretty hard but no damage was done beyond the delay.

JUDGMENT OF NON SUIT.—In the suit of Contractor G. W. Hunt vs. the Oregon Pacific, a judgment of non suit was entered in the United States circuit court yesterday. This suit was compromised for $60,000 the other day.

Take the Northern Pacific Railroad for all points East. The only dining-car route from Portland. Office, No. 2 Washington street.

EAST BANK HAPPENINGS.

About Establishing a Public Reading Room on That Side

The Town of St. Johns Improving—Large Tract Being Cleared—Old Holladay Hotel—Thanksgiving Services—Etc.

For some time the subject of a public club and reading room in East Portland has claimed attention. A lady has this to say regarding the matter:

In a recent conversation with a leading physician well known in this city, the subject of a private club room was broached, in which the doctor was much in favor of as a moral reformer and place of attraction for men to congregate, where the surrounding influences were elevating as well as entertaining. A place where men would meet with men of culture, intellect and integrity, whose strain of conversation would tend to enlighten instead of demoralizing the hearers. To whose social position would ensure order and respect from all entering the room, even to the extent of respecting themselves and feeling better for having gone there.

Now if such a club room should be organized and carried on the same plan as others in large cities they would indeed be a great moralizing power in East Portland. It is hoped that some enterprising gentleman who wishes to see a better state of morality in the city will [illegible] move in that direction. The doctor before referred to is positive there are enough moneyed men on this side of the river to start and maintain successfully such an organization. Some [illegible].

ST. JOHNS

This little town on the east bank of the Willamette is growing quite rapidly. Several new houses are being put up for new comers and others are to follow. It has been reported that the attempt to establish water works to supply the place has been abandoned and will not be resumed. This is not true. Operations have only been suspended for the reason that those who have the enterprise in hand could not give the attention necessary at present. The well was sunk to a depth of 135 feet when an attempt was then made to drive it but the machine gave way. It is understood that work will be resumed on the water works in the spring and the enterprise pushed to completion. This information was obtained from one who seemed to know all about the matter. The prospects are that the little town of St. Johns will make rapid and substantial growth within the next twelve months.

CLEARING A LARGE TRACT

The constant explosions that have been heard in the northern portion of the city are from the clearing operations in progress on the Irving tract situated east of Margaretta avenue. A force of men have been at work on this fine tract for some time, and it is very evident the owner intends to clear the stumps all out of it. They are blown out with giant powder. It is quite interesting to watch the operation. Charges are inserted in a number of stumps and the fuse is fired. Then follows a succession of explosions and the stumps were flying in all directions.

THE OLD HOLLADAY BUILDING

There seems some prospect that the old Holladay building put up by Ben Holladay near the foot of the avenue, when he was in the summer time of his prosperity, can be put to some use with the completion of the roadway across the railroad bridge. The travel along the avenue is certain to increase very rapidly with the completion of the roadway. There are already three groceries on the avenue. A street car line will be operated also on Holladay avenue. It seems very likely that the old building, which has stood so long silent and vacant, will at last be used for the purpose for which the railroad king built it—a hotel.

THANKSGIVING SERVICES

Some of the churches on this side of the river have arranged to hold a union service in the Methodist church on Thanksgiving day (Thursday). One of the objects of the union is to secure funds to help those who are needy. Those who attend will be invited to contribute money or articles of family use. These will be turned over to the Ladies' Relief Society, who will use them in relieving the poor that may come under their observation. This is evidently the best way to help the deserving poor. It has not been announced as yet who will preach on the occasion.

The several churches of Albina will unite in a union Thanksgiving service next Thursday at 11 A. M. at the Presbyterian church. Rev. T. H. Henderson of the Congregational church of Multnomah will preach the sermon and a Thanksgiving offering will be taken in behalf of the Ladies' Union Relief Society of Albina. The churches request the business houses to close and together with others come out with all the members of the family and join in this first union Thanksgiving service.

There will be special service in St. David's church Thanksgiving at 10:30 and a sermon and music appropriate. All are invited to attend. An offering for Good Samaritan hospital will be made.

PERSONAL AND GENERAL

The smallpox scare has entirely subsided.

J. B. McMillen and family leave for California the first of December.

The schools will be dismissed to-morrow evening, until after Thanksgiving.

Mr. Morgan Backus, California's famous artist, is the guest of [illegible] Yocum, the favorite photographer.

The Portland & Vancouver Railroad Company is having a trench dug on each side of Fourth street from the avenue to Sullivan's gulch to give the water a chance to run off.

Mr. W. L. Visscher of THE OREGONIAN will deliver his humorous lecture "Sixty Minutes in the West" at Hall & Stott's hall, East Portland, this evening, under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. He will be assisted by Mr. J. H. Taylor in that gentleman's classic banjo performances.

The relatives of Mrs. Holland, who was rendered helpless and destitute by the death of her husband by smallpox, have not yet done anything for her. They have written several times but that is all. She is practically a charge on the city. Already an expense of about $150 has been incurred.

NO CARRIAGE AT THE DOOR.—A certain family were surprised to see standing in front of their door last evening a vehicle which in the next moment gave evidence of its character. It was a swill wagon which the driver had stopped, giving little attention to the locality, while he sauntered off to get a pail of swill in the next block. To say the family in front of whose house the wagon was halted were mad is but feebly expressing the situation. This was about 6 in the evening and is no unusual occurrence. These carts should be relegated to more seemly hours.

The rosy freshness and the velvety softness of the skin is [illegible] obtained by those who use Pozzoni's Complexion Powder.

A FAIR ASSESSMENT.

It is not easy to enact a law to regulate assessment of property and taxation fairly and justly, yet it is very important that it should be done. The mortgage tax law was objected to because money was there taxed at its face value, while the property it may represent—at not one-half its value at that—may not be assessed at one-third the sum borrowed on it. One would think this well known fact a full answer to the pretense that property is taxed at its actual value, but "there are none so blind as those who won't see."

It does not seem very difficult to frame a fair measure for a true assessment of property. Let assessment be fair and the tax levy cannot be unfair. It has been suggested that there be a state assessor and that assessors be appointed or elected in every judicial district, with deputies in every precinct or in reasonable districts, so that the assessor shall know the country and people he assesses. Let the district assessor visit every county seat and examine the sales of real property made for the year and learn what land has really sold for. Let land be classed into three values or classes, and taking Multnomah as the center of trade, let distance from that center be a criterion as to the values in other counties, as products are worth less because of transportation; therefore land must vary in value. Let the district assessors meet and give their findings and then let a scale of prices be fixed for lands in all the counties, based on sales made and recorded and existing facts. Money would be assessed at its face and personal property could also be easily estimated by classification. It is not necessary to follow out the full idea of such a measure here.

It should be so that an assessor has only to distribute blanks for every tax payer to fill out and make it a finable offense if he fails to do so. The assessor can appoint a time to meet his constituents and have all the assessment made on the first of April of of each year. The blanks to be accompanied by a copy of the law and each man to appear during the first days of April to make his returns. There shall be no value fixed; each man shall say he has so many acres of land class 1, so many class 2, and so many class 3. All his personal property to be listed at value according to circumstances, and the law shall prescribe how it shall be classed. The local assessor must take pains to have a correct assessment. All the returns are to be furnished to the county clerks and the board of assessors, who meet at the capital to canvass them and fix values for every county. The values thus fixed are reported to the county clerks and the county assessment rolls are then completed.

This plan has been studied out by one who has paid attention to the subject and has had official experience to justify forming opinions. It is not very complicated and takes away from county assessors their present duty of fixing values and leaves no room for complaint.

There are disadvantages in an unfair assessment that react on the state. For instance, the assessment has averaged not even one-third actual values; the world reads the figures of our assessment and supposes they have been fairly made and believes that Oregon is possessed of little wealth. A full assessment causes no one loss, for if it is twice as great as now the tax levy will only be half as much. It is for the common good that all the property of the state shall be listed at its full value, since it is with states as with individuals that their credit depends on their wealth and fair dealing.

RIVER PROBLEMS.

The river problems press for attention. They are state problems. Portland is not solely interested, though her interest is great. What will the legislature do?

It is certain that a bill will be submitted to provide for the construction of portage railway lines at the Cascades and Dalles. People are reaching the conclusion that they cannot afford to wait upon the slow movements of the general government and that the state must act, if we would not wait thirty years more for connection between the upper and lower rivers.

Much thought and care will be necessary in preparation of any bill on the subject. To make provision for construction and operation of these portage roads and yet to keep within constitutional and business limits will be a delicate work. The very first attempt at the subject will show how it is beset with difficulties, and yet we trust a way will be found. The people of the state are, we think, prepared to tax themselves for the sums necessary for the work.

The lower river must also be a subject of legislation. To relieve commerce of a burden the present pilot system ought to be abolished. There is no need of other pilots than the masters of the tugs that do the towing. Again it should be considered whether some way cannot be devised to regulate towage charges so that the cost of the service may be minimized. Were it practicable, the right thing would be for the state to undertake this service—a service so necessary for the common good—and perform it at barest cost.

These and other things ought to be considered before the legislature meets, so that members may be prepared to submit well digested plans. These river problems concern almost the whole state; they concern four-fifths of its population and an equal proportion of its productive industries—for the channel of the Columbia is and will ever be the chief avenue of the commerce of Oregon.

THEY BEGIN TO SEE IT.

Just how it happened that the democratic party was beaten in the recent election by the vote of the rural districts is beginning at last to find a way to the intelligence of the journals of [illegible]. The New York Tribune has discovered the truth. It says: "The democrats [illegible] proposed to cut off more than half of all the duties collected to protect farm industry. The answer of the people was to elect a republican president, a republican house, and the astonishing votes in the farming states are still ringing in the ears of tariff reformers. The logical inference is that the majorities in the farming states want the things done which they petitioned congress to have done; they want the tariff made to serve its purpose; [illegible] want it broken down."

This is the first statement we have seen in any journal published in an Eastern state that would indicate the dawning of a comprehension of the real question involved in the struggle. Many journals have found the phenomenon of the vote wholly inexplicable; they have been unable to see why the rural districts should have voted more strongly against the democratic tariff scheme than the manufacturing districts—thus showing utter ignorance of the fact that the Mills bill was gotten up for Eastern manufacturers and the Solid South, upon the supposition that the combination would carry the election. The people of the rural districts, the producers of materials, saw at once that the bill was hostile to them, and they rose up against it. That the Eastern press was so generally blind to the real issue is a surprising fact. Even yet, with the vote before them, some are unable to comprehend it.

WEST VIRGINIA.

It is conceded on all sides that upon the face of the returns Goff, republican, is elected governor of West Virginia. His plurality is put at 124. The Cleveland electors appear to be successful by a plurality somewhat greater than that for Goff. On the face of the returns one democrat and three republicans are elected to congress. Our dispatches of yesterday announced that the democratic candidates for congress were appealing to the courts of the state for an order to forbid the issuance of certificates of election to their republican competitors. It is not improbable that control of the house of representatives will depend upon the result of this contest.

As is usual in such cases there are loud charges of fraud on both sides. Democrats claim that many persons voted for the republican candidates who were not lawful electors; republicans assert that the democratic canvassers have been throwing out votes in large numbers for the purpose of electing [illegible]. There is a dispute also over several members of the legislature, and perhaps there will be two governors and two legislatures in West Virginia, with an appeal to congress to decide which is the rightful and legal government of the state.

The whole country may be thankful that the title to the presidency is not mixed up in this contention, as it would be if the state of New York had gone democratic. But this incident again shows that we are in continual danger of such a contest over the presidency as that of 1876.

WOMAN AS A MUGWUMP.

The recent presidential campaign has furnished ample proof that if the Woman's Christian Temperance Union had voted it would have voted for Cleveland indirectly by directly voting for Fisk. Mrs. J. Ellen Foster of Iowa in vain protested against turning the Union into a political machine nominally to aid the third party prohibitionists, but really to help the democrats by drawing votes from the republican party. She begged to be allowed as a republican to retain her standing in the Union, but she was insulted by the Union, which refused to recognize anybody as an orthodox member who was not a third party prohibitionist. The vote on members of congress in Connecticut shows that the republicans in that state had a net plurality of [illegible], although the Cleveland electoral ticket had 335 plurality. In New Jersey, while the democrats carried the state by 67[illegible] plurality on the presidential vote, they have only 273[illegible] plurality on the congressional vote. The total vote shows also that the republicans cast 1394 more votes for congressmen than they did for president, while the democratic poll on congressmen was 2601 less than on president.

Nothing but the liquor vote and the action of the third party prohibitionists prevented the state from going for Harrison. Hudson county, which includes Jersey City and where the liquor interest reigns supreme, gave Cleveland [illegible] plurality, or 1308 more plurality than he had in the whole state. Warner Miller was beaten for governor of New York and the saloon candidate Hill re-elected by the third party prohibitionists, who persisted in refusing to vote for a high license candidate, and it is this kind of lunatic politics that seems to find the most favor with the Woman's Christian Temperance Union advocates of female suffrage. No wonder that the great mass of men are hostile to female suffrage in face of this clear predilection of the great majority of woman suffragists for third party prohibition bedlam politics. No wonder that on the 15th inst. the Vermont house of representatives rejected a bill granting woman the suffrage by a vote of 197 to 37, or more than five to one. Two years ago the Vermont house passed a similar bill by a large majority. A Montpelier journal says that one important element in the change was the action of the national organization of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union endorsing the third party movement, which in the opinion of most republicans showed such a lack of knowledge of the practical working of political parties as at present organized as to demonstrate that women are not yet sufficiently enlightened in practical politics to be entrusted with the ballot." The petitions for the passage of the bill were signed by fewer women this year than ten years ago, and the Rutland Herald, a republican paper which strongly favored the bill, confesses that "the real reason why women are not voting in Vermont already is because a majority of neither men nor women is convinced that it is best." The female suffragists have a hard uphill fight before them, and they have been warned over and over again in THE OREGONIAN that their cause cannot carry prohibition on its shoulders and have the faintest hope of victory. The attempt of the Women's Temperance Union to carry prohibition and female suffrage at the same time has resulted in damage both to the cause of temperance legislation and to the cause of female suffrage, as is evident from the vote of the Vermont legislature. Women suffragists cannot expect to advocate both lunatic and saloonatic politics without losing the confidence of the republican party in the wisdom of granting suffrage to women who cast their influence with men who abuse it.

NEW ENGLAND.

Years ago the New England hills supported a large population that grew up rugged and honest and independent and capable. The students of the boys went to Yale or Harvard and earned their way often by manual labor that they were not ashamed to do at odd times. They did not go there "to have a good time" or to spend money, but impressed with the idea that knowledge was power and would give them power to make their way in the world. These boys became men and went out into the world to fight its battles, and the training they received was the "open sesame" by which bolts and bars were unlocked and way made for them in the world. They went everywhere; they gave new blood to the cities, they lent their sturdy impulse to the South and they peopled the far West with a population that had no equal under the sun. The spirit of New England penetrated the mass and was the leaven that leavened the whole lump of Middle and Western states and made them what they are to-day. What this country owes to New England can never be overestimated, because from the spirit of indomitable will and energy and purpose that landed with the Pilgrims has come the grandest elements of American character.

A change has come over the New England that the fathers knew, and that was made of such sturdy material. Yale and Harvard are filled up with hundreds, to be sure, but they go there to spend thousands and educate [illegible] of the world more than to be the world's men. The brave fellows who work their way are fewer in proportion [illegible]. The New England that [illegible] power [illegible] the fathers [illegible] the school house have [illegible] begun to decay.

Perhaps it is best that New England should let her rushing waters turn spinning wheels and manufacture for the world's needs. Perhaps it is best that the sons of the Pilgrims shall leave the old homesteads and "Go West," while there is a West to go to. We remember that the fathers made fields by gathering the stones in piles and by heaping the rocks into stone walls for fences. We wonder how they did it and how they throve so well at it. They were no common race. The men plowed and planted and the women spun and wove and their children filled the red school houses that grew among the hills. Few and far between were the sunny glades and fragrant meadows, but the stony hill-sides were everywhere.

New England has earned her share of the wide domain stretching from the Eastern ocean to the Western seas, and none have better claim to the fertile acres of the West than the sons of the Puritans. They cannot spare time to gather stones when the immense prairies of the West are within their reach. Let them come and build homes, churches and school houses, and plant colleges and build universities. Let them build states and implant as much of the spirit of their fathers as possible on the great communities that are growing into commonwealths and states. There can be no better material for the West, but may there be left enough of the seed of the olden stock to keep alive and in exercise the spirit of '76 and of [illegible].

EX-PRESIDENTS—GROVER CLEVELAND.

When Cleveland leaves the White house he will lack just two weeks of being 52 years of age. What will he do? Travel in Europe for a time of course, and then what? He is an ambitious man of a good deal of physical energy and considerable capacity for work like drudgery, of dogged obstinate qualities, nonsensitive and pugnacious. What will he do? Washington was 65 when he retired to private life. A large landed proprietor, he was glad to go back to the management of his estates. John Adams was in his 66th year when he left the White house amid the execrations of both parties, and he spent his remaining 25 years in comparative obscurity and neglect. Jefferson was 66 when his second term ended in 1809. His remaining days were spent in his library and in fancy farming. He had a certain talent for literary work, but he was an extravagant farmer, and although he inherited a good property and married a rich wife he spent so freely and managed so poorly that he died insolvent. Madison was 66 when he completed his second term in 1817. He left his retirement but once, when in 1829 he was a member of the convention that revised the constitution of Virginia. Monroe was 67 when his second term expired in 1825, too old to do anything for dignified support, and so poor that he was obliged before his death in 1831 to accept the shelter of his son-in-law's home in New York city. John Quincy Adams was 62 years of age when in 1829 he was succeeded by Jackson, but in 1832 he took his seat in the lower house as an independent, where he remained until his death, Feb. 23, 1848. Jackson was about 70 years old when his second term ended. Van Buren was 59 when he left the White house. He was defeated for renomination in 1844 by the South because he was hostile to the annexation of Texas, and in 1848 he was the free soil candidate for president. With this campaign Van Buren at the age of 66 retired from public life. John Tyler was but 55 when he was succeeded by Polk. He did not emerge from private life until February, 1861, when he was the president of the famous peace convention at Washington, and he died in January, 1862, a member of the Confederate congress. Polk was but 54 years of age when he witnessed the inauguration of his successor and survived his retirement a little more than three months. Fillmore was but 53 when retired to private life, from which he did not emerge save in 1856, when he was the candidate of the know nothing or American party for president. Pierce was [illegible] when succeeded by Buchanan in 1857. He made a tour of Europe, spoke for the Confederate cause during the civil war, and died in contempt in October, 1869. Buchanan was about 70 when he retired to private life. Andrew Johnson was in his 60th year when succeeded by Grant. He remained an active politician and was elected to the United States senate in January, 1875, but died the 30th of the following July. Grant was but [illegible] when he retired from the presidency. In 1880 he was beaten for renomination for a third term. Hayes was in his 59th year when he was succeeded by Garfield in 1881. Prison labor reform and poultry seem to satisfy his present ambition, and he has not made an attempt to return to public life. President Arthur was in his 55th year when he retired from the White house. Had he retained his health he would doubtless have sought further distinction in public life, for which he was admirably fitted and to which he was greatly attached.

It will be seen from this review of the lives of our ex-presidents that none of them sought or enjoyed political honors of consequence after their retirement, save John Quincy Adams, Martin Van Buren, Andrew Johnson and Gen. Grant. What will Cleveland do? He is younger to-day than any of these men were when they returned to private life. Will he play the part of Tyler, Fillmore, Pierce and Hayes and take his ease, or will he seek to return to politics like the younger Adams, Van Buren, Johnson and Grant? In our judgment Cleveland will stay in politics, and he will stay in politics for the same reason that Andrew Johnson did, viz: Because he is ambitious and enjoys power and position for their own sake. Adams and Van Buren sought politics, the former because he thought he had a moral work to do against slavery, and the latter from a mixture of motives. Van Buren sympathized with Adams's dread of the slave power, and he was anxious to get his revenge for his defeat in 1840. Cleveland is a beaten man like Van Buren, a younger, more ambitious, aggressive and pugnacious man than Van Buren was in 1841. A far less able man [illegible] of coarser fibre, Cleveland has [illegible] he will stay in politics and try to [illegible] to the top [illegible] of Andrew Johnson rather than those of Van Buren. Cleveland is of the Andrew Johnson type, and it will not be his fault if he does not remain an active, ambitious, aggressive democratic politician to the end of his own life. He is not of delicate sensibilities; he is not easily discouraged; he is full of self confidence; he is capable of a vast deal of exhausting drudgery; he is both pugnacious and persistent. Cleveland while life lasts will no more cease trying to get back to public life than did Andrew Johnson, whom he greatly resembles in temperament, although by no means his equal in intellect or powers of public speech. And Cleveland is quite likely to succeed. He is a thorough drudge and well calculated to remain a man of considerable influence in the democratic party. So long as the South remains of its present temper and persists in its present tariff policy, Cleveland can count on its support, and the journals of his party are already beginning to urge him to imitate John Quincy Adams and enter congress. The Boston Herald says:

> Let Mr. Cleveland run for congress and on the floor of the house fight out the battle for tariff reform he so nobly inaugurated as president. There let him make his iron will, his judicial power of statesmanship, his unflinching courage tell on a great national issue.

The N. Y. Graphic endorses the views of the Herald and adds:

> Grover Cleveland could well in the next four years stand upon the floor of the house and fight out the battle of tariff reform which he so unselfishly inaugurated. His [illegible] sturdy courage, his impressive personality would [illegible] towards gaining the victory over the tariff barons for which the country longs. But whatever he chooses to do for the next four years, the democracy has not done with him.

Nothing would be easier than for Cleveland on his return from foreign travel to get a congressional nomination in a democratic district of New York city. It is the best course before him. He is not a lawyer of sufficient ability to make any figure at the New York city bar, but he certainly would make a more shining democratic member from New York city than ex-Congressman Tim Campbell, who pensively says: "Me and Grover went in together and me and Grover go out together." But Cleveland in the lists of house debate would not be nimble enough to meet men like McKinley and Reed, and would disappoint his friends. We have said that he will remain a live figure in Southern politics as long as Southern politics are solid. The South has not forgotten that it was Grover Cleveland who wrote officially of Calhoun:

> I believe it would be well if all he did and believed and taught and all his aspirations for the welfare and prosperity of our republic were better known and understood. In this were so much would be found to enlighten and encourage those charged with [illegible] duty and [illegible] to stimulate patriotism.

The South has a passionate, devoted friend [illegible] the Wilmington (N. C.) Messenger accurately voices Cleveland's popularity in the South to-day when it says:

> If Mr. Cleveland in the hour of his defeat [illegible] the people of the South.
>
> We of the southern states are bound to feel that he stumbled and fell before the embittered and malignant North under the self-imposed burden of a firm determination and high purpose to shield and relieve the Southern people. He will be to the [illegible] citizen of the country when he shall again assume the private station.
>
> Let no man doubt the South's faith [illegible] Grover Cleveland. No matter how or why he [illegible] the clutch [illegible] With Southern men he must remain the grand [illegible] friend of the South, the admired of the Southern people.

THE LEGISLATURE.

The session of forty days is no time enough for deliberation and good work in such needs doing, and the time is thus [illegible] if the legislature is composed of inferior material and whose action is to be dreaded. It is a question to consider that legislation is not to be avoided, and whether there is not as much danger from incoming men who get to the legislature for a purpose and carry it out regardless of right and probity as from want of legislation in any exists. The world can get along with much less lawmaking than many people suppose. The common law, which is a collection of precedents handed down as acknowledged principles of right, answered a very good purpose and answers yet to fill up all gaps in the statutes, and it is to be lamented that statutory enactments have in our day usurped [illegible] the old and well established principles. The material of an ordinary legislature is not competent to improve on the common law, and it is often well to let well enough alone.

Let us test the material of any ordinary legislature, for example. We find the class [illegible] level-headed men who are competent and judicious, quite a number [illegible] who are anxious to get into the [illegible] and earn the title "honorable," but [illegible] neither qualified by experience [illegible] or conscience [illegible] for the serious [illegible] of legislation. They can legislate; they [illegible] entire confidence in themselves and the more self confident they have the [illegible] are the [illegible]. There are a number of [illegible] who are put on to [illegible] the rural districts, and who [illegible] could not well be entrusted to [illegible] elected. The trouble with legislatures is that chronic cranks find their way there, or that men go there with a purpose that means business. Some go there on speculation and their talents find play to an extent.

Many men have pet measures that they force upon legislatures, and come there to lobby them through. [illegible] so that before a session is a week old there is work enough before it to require six months deliberation, if all are to receive due attention. Here is where [illegible] prompt and decisive action. Many of these measures are so unworthy or unnecessary that they should be summarily disposed of by being rejected so as to waste no time, for time is money to the state and there is legitimate work to be done to occupy the forty days.

The chief trouble is that every legislature contains new and inexperienced men. A few come who have sat before, but the most are new beginners. They have to become acquainted with their work and with each other. This occupies half the session, leaving only twenty days for actual performance. This makes it all the more needful that all necessary bills and measures without utility should be dismissed as soon as possible. In the hurry that always comes at the end, bills are forced through that are [illegible], and other bills of importance are spoiled by some trivial amendment that really means nothing, and there is not time to study consequences.

Forty days might answer if the members all had experience and were ready to push work. Forty days, however, leaves little opportunity for overlegislation, and many people prefer to be on the safe side. If legislatures could be [illegible] work and do it well [illegible] would be none too much [illegible] duties that grew upon the [illegible] to decide whether [illegible] sessions should be longer or not. The state is growing in every material interest [illegible] longer. When the question comes up, the people will be prepared to answer it.

Gov. Harrison, as described by an Indianapolis correspondent, is not a warm, effusive or magnetic man. He has no chums or cronies. Some think him cold [illegible] when he tries. All this promises well in one respect: [illegible] encouraging the hope that around this administration there will be no little ring of chums or cronies working for their own purposes and bringing reproach upon the president, his administration and his party. Quite as important as the ability to secure the service of strong men is the ability to freeze out that sort of self-seekers and political parasites called by Shakespeare, who always has more expressive words than any body else, "the caterpillars of the state."

THE OREGONIAN is asked to publish the official vote of New York state. We think it has heretofore been given in our telegraphic reports, but we reproduce it as we find it in the newspapers of New York. The total vote of the great commonwealth for president and governor respectively was as follows:

President.		Governor.
Harrison (R)	[illegible]	Miller (R)	[illegible]
Cleveland (D)	[illegible]	Hill (D)	[illegible]
Fisk (P)	[illegible]	Jones (P)	[illegible]

Upon these figures the plurality for Harrison for president is 13,399, and for Hill for governor, 18,12[illegible].

It is now asserted by democratic journals that "free wool" didn't weaken their party, but on the contrary that their party made gains in the three states that produce most wool—Ohio, California and Texas. This conclusion will not bear examination. In Ohio the republicans made no effort, knowing that no effort was needed. Few speeches were made; all the money that could be raised was sent to other states, and the prominent republican speakers of Ohio did service in Indiana, New York and elsewhere. Never in the history of the republican party was there so languid a canvass in Ohio, but had it been needful the state would have been worked up and a big majority produced. The fact that Harrison has not so large a majority in California as Blaine had is due wholly to the change in the city of San Francisco, which is not a wool growing locality. That change was brought about by persistent [illegible] of the city. Outside of San Francisco Harrison's plurality in California is greater than Blaine's. As for Texas, no elections are held in that state. It is only a count, and a million majority would be produced if it were deemed necessary. As it is they content themselves with 100,000 to 150,000.

The following from the Utica Press, published at the old home of Roscoe Conkling, is significant. [illegible] assertion that the republican party is indebted to Mr. Blaine:

> If Mr. Blaine delivered a thousand speeches [illegible] Maine for any appointments [illegible] points out the folly of [illegible].

The republicans carried Dakota by a little over 30,000. The total vote of North Dakota was [illegible],000; of South Dakota, 71,000; whole vote 111,000. On a basis of [illegible] persons to each voter the population would be [illegible]. In North Dakota the population would be 250,000, in South Dakota [illegible],000. The democrats have elected but four members of the legislature in the whole territory.

The story that President Wm. Henry Harrison was worried to death by office seekers is without foundation. He died of pneumonia in consequence upon his exposure to the very severe weather of March 4, 1841, when the old soldier insisted in leading the parade on foot in full uniform, which unfortunately did not include an overcoat.

GEOGRAPHY IN THE BENIGHTED EAST

If some philanthropist will present a map of Oregon to the young man who gets up the "Missing Link" column for the Chicago Herald such mistakes as those contained in the two following paragraphs will not happen so frequently:

The lantern of Tullamore light, near Portland, Ore., is 190 feet above the sea level, yet several times the glass has been broken and the light extinguished by severe storms.

In Walla Walla valley, Oregon, four crops of strawberries have been gathered, pear trees have yielded three crops, apple trees two crops and numerous other fruits the same.

RESOLUTIONS.

PORTLAND, Or., Nov. 22.

WHEREAS, We have learned with deep regret of the sudden death of our highly esteemed friend, David I. Hughes,

Resolved, That we humbly bow to the will of Him who doeth all things well, that we realize our loss in the death of one who was a bright light in the National Union, a genial associate, a charter member and warm friend of Willamette Council No. 52, N. U., of this city.

Resolved, That our heartfelt sympathies be tendered to the bereaved widow in this her sad affliction.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon our minutes, published in our daily papers and a copy sent to his widow.

HARRISON, THE MAN.

Something About His Personality—Likes and Dislikes

A Man Who Has No Chums or Cronies—He Is Called a "Cold" Man—His Wife the Merry Maker of the Family

Indianapolis Special to Chicago News

The people who are figuring on what Gen Harrison is going to do are all anxious to get some close details about the character and the inner life of the man. For these some of the following facts will be interesting and valuable.

All his friends agree that his most prominent characteristic is on the religious side. He is a Presbyterian of the severest school and he is intensely interested in questions of doctrine. The only books he reads for pleasure are those concerned with the development of the Calvinistic system and others touching upon the Cromwellian period. He is said to fancy that his own character is like Gen Harrison of the English revolution and he knows more about the life and times of that roundhead trooper than he does of his grandfather the president. But he cares little for new books and has little sympathy with modern culture. The only novel he has [illegible] been heard to praise is Lew Wallace's Ben Hur. He reads the newspapers [illegible] Pittsburgh Herald. He [illegible] neither to talk [illegible] are not generally [illegible] Walt Whitman [illegible]

He does not play cards and checkers, chess [illegible] racing of the trotting [illegible] gambling and gamblers. Neither does he [illegible] and when in 1881 he gave a dinner to the [illegible] Plume and other notables [illegible] exception by its absence from his table. He has declared, however, that he will not depart from the usual custom and that wine will be served to those who wish it at the White House. The [illegible] speech has been often quoted to show that he had leanings toward prohibition. He is absolutely destitute of a sense of humor and it is said, when in a company where merry tales are told his laugh is rather a concession to [illegible] of the demand which public opinion makes upon him than a symptom of enjoyment. When men are gathered together and a story which might be described as unfit for publication is told, the general does not laugh but he does not leave the room.

The president elect is very fond of the table and he is a dainty rather than a heavy eater. His favorite dish is a salad of lettuce or water cresses or something of that sort and a recipe for the dressing written in his own hand some years ago and running as follows is a valued relic kept by an Indianapolis friend:

For each person four tablespoonfuls of oil and a little more, one and a half of vinegar, a saltspoonful of salt, one of black pepper, two of dry mustard and a pinch of red pepper. The dry materials mix first, then put in the oil and last the vinegar. Add a shred of garlic and a pinch of celery salt.

At his own table the general always makes the salad and usually he carves although his carving is said to be poor. After each meal he takes a pinch of salt in a glass of water and gargles his throat thoroughly, a practice to which he ascribes his immunity from all sorts of sore throat and especially from hoarseness.

Mrs Harrison on the other hand has a fund of spirits which sometimes finds expression in practical jokes. For instance there is a Dr Newcomer, a great friend of the Harrison family, who is a practitioner of the old school and a deadly enemy of all quacks and all who advertise in any way. This doctor is the owner of a white dog which he regards as the apple of his eye and which like Mary's little lamb follows him about wherever he may go. The two are inseparable. One day Mrs Harrison and a lady friend not having the peace and dignity of the doctor before their eyes decoyed this dog off into a secluded place and there and then painted upon each of his sides in indelible aniline colors the legend "Try Newcomer's Pills" and the dog trotted off to his master with this most unprofessional and unethical recommendation where he who runs might read. Nor was his decoration discovered by his owner until after it had been displayed along the whole of the doctor's route. The doctor had to have his canine friend shaved to get rid of the request and there was a tension between the Newcomers and the Harrisons for some time.

Mrs Harrison is a most voracious reader. She is a lady of fine culture, elegant in her tastes and fitted by both character and education for the honor which has come to her. She is very fond of Browning, of company and of amateur theatricals. They had in Indianapolis a coterie of friends who went in for [illegible] and Mrs Harrison herself adapted the plays that were put on and wrote the charades that were acted. Some of these latter were very clever and one that excited much attention was published in the St Nicholas one year since. She keeps thoroughly abreast of the literature of the day and the only point where her husband's character and her own touch is in their deep and common religious conviction.

Gen Harrison is not popular in Indianapolis. He is too cold and unresponsive. He can be almost clammy when he wishes. The result was that in a presidential election into which every element of city and county pride entered he carried Indianapolis by 136 votes but lost the county. Marion by 38, although Marion county gave Blaine 220 plurality in 884. In his old regiment—the Tenth Indiana—he was also unpopular although the veterans of that body met this evening and the president was present. As one of the veterans said, Harrison in the army was a martinet of the most severe sort, and as particular about unimportant details as an old maid. Sleeping on a log in a swamp he had headquarters guards stationed around him. He was a fighter though and won respect where he could not win love.

Speaking of his determination to avoid newspaper interviews the general said to day: "In all my experience of the relations of public men to the press those things which I am most regretful were the things he had said not those which he had not said. In other words the mistakes are all on the side of what is printed. I have not been interviewed since the beginning of the campaign nor will I be. Everything purporting to be a political statement credited to me is false, for I have discussed the situation with no newspaper man not even with my friends."

One fault of the general as a politician is his inability to remember names and faces, a trouble which he remedies by bowing and shaking hands with everybody. Half the time he cannot remember the names of the people who use the next pew to him in church, and he has invariably declined to take part in any social function which implied the introduction of anybody to anybody else as at receptions and the like. The general is entirely conscious of his own weakness or rather of the causes of his failure to make a good impression and it is manifest to all Indianapolis that he is going to the utmost pains to be courteous and companionable. His geniality needs oiling however [illegible]

BLOODY FRACAS IN CHINA TOWN

Celestial Gamblers at Astoria Get Into a Row and do Some Promiscuous Carving

Says the [illegible] of Sunday morning: A bloody fracas occurred last night about 9 o'clock in Chinatown in which Nim Jue and Ho Ah Fung were the participants. It appears that the row commenced in a gambling den [illegible] Nim Jue left [illegible] he [illegible] knocked him down and stabbed him. Ho Ah [illegible] the crowd. The [illegible] attracted a hundred or more of their excited and [illegible] countrymen [illegible] in charge of [illegible] Officer Beck [illegible] city jail where Ho Ah Fung was left to cool off in a cell while Nim Jue had his wounds and bruises dressed by the skillful hands of Dr Baker. Nim Jue is badly hurt but his wounds are not so serious as to endanger his life. Nim Jue belongs to the Sue Sing Company while Ho Ah Fung is of the Sing Shing Company. Members of these two rival companies had a cutting scrape in Portland lately, for which three of the latter are jailed.

ASTORIA NOTES

ASTORIA, Nov 25

Miss Annie Finley is down from Portland on a short visit with Miss Clara Racker.

W E Dement and family left on the night boat last evening for California overland. It is their intention to make an extended visit, covering two winters in the southern part of the state. They will be accompanied by the best wishes of their numerous friends in this city.

J O Hanthorn has the Frolic on the ways at Leinenweber's where she will have new boilers and machinery put in fitting her ready for next fishing season.

S J Arrigoni, a well known Astoria boy, returned to his old home as one of the crew of the ship J W Marr from New York. [illegible] left here on a vessel with young Landon and Brick Wilson about four years ago. He has seen much of both the old world and the new during the interval and comes back to us a manly young fellow heavily bearded. He took the first boat to Portland after his arrival anxious to see his mother and sisters.

FEDERATED TRADES ASSEMBLY.

The Tailors Union Joins the Federation—The Work of Organization Making Progress

The Federated Trades Assembly met [illegible] at their hall in Mar[illegible] Capt John O [illegible] presided [illegible] secretary and M [illegible] The following communication was received from the Tailors Union:

[illegible]

MARCUS SIEVERS, Secretary

A [illegible] for the same work the same [illegible] objects of the Federated Trades, therefore the signature to the above communication is not out of place.

The delegates were admitted to seats in the assembly.

Bills to the amount of $21 [illegible] were ordered paid.

The committee on the ball reported that the affair was a success [illegible] that there were [illegible] tickets [illegible] the receipts were $131 [illegible] The bills were not all presented and the committee were given further time. Under the management of the committee the hall has been artistically decorated under the direction of Delegate A A Yortlett from the Painters and Decorators Union and it is now for the first time since the trades have occupied it presenting a neat and attractive appearance.

The committee on organization reported that they expected to organize a carriage painters union also a carriage and wagon makers union, as men working at these trades have expressed a desire to organize.

The committee on Milwaukee [illegible] beer reported that the boycott was working well.

The executive committee report that the brewers of the city manifest a friendly spirit to organized labor and that there is no grievance existing between them and the trades although they regret that some of the members of the Brewers Union were still unemployed.

Delegate Hyland from the Tailors Union read a list of tailor shops that were scabbed by that union and asked the assistance of the assembly.

A motion prevailed that the Tailors union furnish the assembly a list of the union shops the same to be distributed among the members of the trades composing the assembly, also the secretary of each union is to be furnished with a letter together with the list to be read and acted on by each union. The delegate said that there were shops here that employed very little white labor and spoke of one large establishment on First street that sent all their work to San Francisco to be there done by Chinese. He said it was a great deal better to buy ready made clothing than patronize that shop. The assembly indorsed the action of the Tailors union and on motion promised to withdraw their patronage from all shops that they would seal after giving said shops the proper notifications.

On motion the following delegates were appointed a committee to buy furniture for the hall: [illegible] Mahin, Michael Dooney and A Kranz.

Under the head of good and welfare of the organization Mr Ed Kaliether made a strong speech favoring the support of all organized labor in behalf of the tailors in their fight against the Chinese competition. He also spoke of the grievances of the servant girls for the same cause and graphically detailed instances of degradation that came to his notice. He hoped that all citizens having the welfare of the working people at heart would join with organized labor in the suppression of this evil.

Delegates F I Meagher, Michael Dooney, Edward Atkinson, A A Yortlett and others urge the appointment of committees to post the unions as to any scab workmen on their jobs. Delegate Meagher said the painters that he could not tell a gang of men from a non union shop as they did not try to enforce the card system.

James Farrell of the Stonemasons said that his union gave notice that after the 1st of January next their union would allow none but members of their union to set stone on a building. He said it was hard for his union to give notice to the contractor but after that date they would enforce the card system.

After providing for the [illegible] on the [illegible] of the month the [illegible] adjourned to meet December 10.

COURT POINTS IN BRIEF

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT

J H Bowman vs John McMahon; motion to strike out parts of complaint denied as to first and second parts, allowed as to third, fifth and sixth parts. Defendant allowed ten days in which to file answer.

United States vs Lulu Bush; set for trial on Monday December 10.

G W Hunt vs Oregon Pacific R R Co; judgment of non suit rendered.

STATE CIRCUIT NO 1

M L Cooper vs G F Forbes et al; set for trial Friday.

Juror Bartsch excused for the term; adjourned until Friday.

STATE CIRCUIT NO 2

Thomas P French vs A D Jones et al; demurrer to complaint overruled; defendant allowed five days to answer.

C A Bates vs J H Drummond et al; demurrer overruled; ten days to answer.

Assignment of Wm Hudson, an insolvent debtor; motion for distribution of the assets and discharge of assignee allowed.

M Carter vs C M Carter et al, Donald Mackay; demurrer continued one week.

Hattie Wilson vs Frank Wilson; motion to dissolve injunction denied.

State vs W C Webb; demurrer to indictment argued and submitted, to be passed on to morrow morning.

Elizabeth Crane vs F S Larsen et al; mandate of supreme court entered; defendant allowed ten days to answer.

Dayton Hardening Mills Co vs J M Leavens et al; complaint as to Leavens and Bennon dismissed.

Elvira Dodson vs Ira Dodson; defendant ordered to pay $50 before Nov 30 to allow plaintiff to prosecute suit.

Frederick V Holman vs John Hulet et al; defendants allowed to correct their answer.

State vs John Bradley; sentenced to the county jail for three months.

State vs John Fitzgerald; same.

State vs Hugh Boyle; plea of not guilty; set for [illegible] Dec 3.

State vs Charles Atwood; motion to quash indictment withdrawn; allowed till to day to plead.

State vs Geo Hanlon and Wm Brown; sentenced to the penitentiary for one year each.

State vs F A Peterson; allowed till to day to plead.

State vs Charles Martin; sentenced to the penitentiary for four years.

In re R G Morrow; application for fee taken under advisement.

State vs Allen Smith; continued until 1:30 P M Friday.

COUNTY

Guardianship of Philip Sturders: A J Marshall guardian discharged.

Estate of J N Scott: Lillie M Scott appointed administratrix; estate valued at $1500.

QUEER AIDS TO MEMORY.

Some of the Remarkable Devices Used by Men to Stimulate Recollection.

How an Inventor Was Enabled to Remember His Wife's Name—A Texas Colonel's Mind Refresher

There are probably nine out of every ten persons in the world who have at some period in their lives suffered from temporary loss of memory. How many of you labor vainly at times to recall the name for an instance of a certain person, place or thing? And how many of you had your memories quickened by the sight of some object—animate or inanimate connected perhaps remotely with the thing, place or person you have been talking or trying to talk about? How often have you been told that "your face is familiar but for the life of me I can't recall your name"?

The loss of memory is peculiar to no one condition in life, says Joseph Q Norris in the St Louis Post Dispatch. The greatest and the humblest are alike subject to it, but it is more marked and frequent in those whose minds are occupied with the "vocal" cares of private and public life that call for intense study and brain work.

It is in these cases—where the brain does duty as a library and storehouse for statistics and is crammed with the minutest details of many and great undertakings—that the memory most often fails and usually when depended upon [illegible] more than ordinarily important.

Here is a case in point:

A gentleman residing not many miles from New York city whose inventions have been praised in all civilized parts of the world cannot if suddenly asked to do it tell you his wife's Christian name. He has time and again when wishing to address her been secretly annoyed by his inability to remember her name and yet there are few husbands who think more of their wives than he does of his. Not long ago the lady presented him with a handsome gold watch and the timepiece has since proven a great comfort to him not because of its intrinsic worth and beauty but for another reason. He accidentally discovered at a time when he wanted to call his wife and his memory tricked him that by simply looking at the watch she had given him he could pronounce her name glibly and without difficulty.

During a recent visit to him I observed that when speaking directly to the lady he invariably produced this watch. I commented upon the oddity of the action and he told me his reason for it, jocosely adding that it would never do to make the story public as it might occasion an alarming increase in the number of absent minded husbands.

Another of these by no means rare instances of inanimate objects acting as subtle but unaccountable guides for the memory came under my personal observation some years ago. It was during the progress of a murder trial in the Bexar county court at San Antonio Texas. There were several attorneys on the side of the prosecution while the defense had retained but one—Col John A Baker, who was one of the state delegates to the Paris exposition from Texas and who married a French countess while abroad. Col Baker had already won an enviable reputation as a criminal lawyer in southwestern Texas but I remember in this instance it was generally thought he was overmatched by the array of counsel on the other side. I was ordered to report the proceedings and sat at the same table with the counsel in the case. Throughout the trial during the opening addresses and the examination of witnesses, and the summing up Col Baker never took a note, but I observed every now and then during the proceedings that he folded or otherwise marked the pages of a book which lay before him on the counsel table. When he closed the case for the defense Col Baker went over the arguments of the prosecution, quoted some parts of them literally, and actually knocked their combined logic into a cocked hat. The evidence was purely circumstantial, though strong, and while going over it and the addresses of the opposing counsel Col Baker kept his hand on the book he had marked though never once did he raise the volume from the table. But he did turn the pages and smooth out one after another as he raised point after point the creases he had made in the leaves.

"What a wonderful memory that man has," whispered the prisoner to me.

I agreed with him. The prisoner was acquitted. After the trial I went up to the colonel and asked him how he had managed to quote so extensively from the arguments and the evidence without taking notes.

"But I did take notes," said he. "Here they are." And he opened what I had supposed was a tome of legal lore, but which in reality proved to be Shakespeare and showed me the creased page. "As things cropped out that seemed to me weak or inconsistent in the evidence or the argument," said he, "I turned down a page for each in the order of occurrence. When it came time to show them up I simply placed my hand on each page in rotation and the inconsistency or error each was marked for stood out as clear to my mind's eye as though written in chalk on a blackboard before me. I can't explain how or why it is, but it all comes back to me as soon as my hand touches the pages I mark. I never write out a note."

"Wouldn't your memory prove as retentive," I asked, "without marking the pages of a book in no wise connected with the case?"

"I have tried it and failed miserably. I can't explain the sympathy that exists between the marked page and my mind. I only know without being able to account for it that it is to me what the opening of a book at a marked page and reading from it would be to another person."

A case parallel to Col Baker's is furnished in H Tupper, one of the most brilliant, eccentric and erratic geniuses that ever helped to fill the columns of a great New York daily paper. Tupper's history is interesting. He hailed originally from Illinois and graduated from Cornell university, New York in the class with Mr Henry Tyrrell, one of the editors of Frank Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper. Tupper was ambitious to enter the journalistic arena and after leaving college led a sort of a Bohemian existence in New York. He had no money and his only acquaintance in the big city was Mr Tyrrell who had secured a position as proof reader at Frank Leslie's. I remember hearing Tupper tell how his first article to appear in print was accepted by the World. He had sent in story after story that had been carefully consigned to the waste basket. At last he mustered up courage enough to take into the sanctum of the editor in chief the manuscript of an article on "The City's Poor." William Henry Hurlbut, then editor in chief, told him to leave it. But "Tup" as his friends called him had been on the ragged edge of anxiety long enough. He insisted politely but firmly that the manuscript be either accepted or rejected at once. Something in his manner or conversation impressed Mr Hurlbut favorably and he took up the manuscript to pass upon its merit. He glanced over a couple of pages and a great big frown began to gather on his face. In proportion to the spread of the frown Tup's heart sank lower and lower and when the last page had been read he mechanically reached out his hand to receive back his manuscript. Mr Hurlbut brought his fist down upon his desk with a bang. Tears started to Tup's eyes. He was hungry and out at the toes and hope with him was at low ebb. Mr Hurlbut looked at him for a moment and then exclaimed:

"D—n it young man you're a genius. A man who could read that article without feeling his heart swell with pity is a villain!"

Then he wrote out a check for $15 and handed it to Tup who was too much overcome to do anything but bow and back out. He cashed the check as he passed through the counting room and as he stepped out on the street he was accosted by a ragged urchin who was soliciting alms to buy food for his mother who, he said, was sick in a ramshackle house on Cherry hill. Tup went to the sick woman's house and gave her $10 of the $15 he had received from the World. This little incident illustrates the man's character, and his career since has been brightened by many similar acts of charity. Tup soon after secured employment on a New York paper as a reporter, and it was in this capacity that his marvelous memory and the total lack of it at times created comment. He was sent on one occasion to interview several prominent men and returned to the office without a written word of the interviews with nothing, in fact, but rough etchings of the persons he had been to see.

"Got a good story?" queried the city editor when Tup showed up.

"Well I've got the material for one I think."

"What did they have to say?"

"I—er—h—m—I don't remember exactly but they talked freely and I was quite interested by what they said."

"Let's see your notes!"

"Notes! I forgot to take any."

"Never took any! Why how in the hot place do you ever expect to write the interviews? It seems that I've assigned a blank idiot to the best story of the day. Well don't stand their gaping. Write something [illegible] blank at all. Cover the story somehow. It's too late to send another man on it."

Poor Tup went to his desk with a woe begone expression on his face and stared meditatively at his ink stand for a while. Then he mustered up courage and wrote the introduction to his story but there he stuck. To save his life he couldn't recall a word that had been said. Just then one of his fellow reporters handed Tup a cigar and in looking for a paper to make a light of he by chance picked up the piece on which he had sketched the heads of the men he had interviewed. Like a flash all that they had said came to mind and as rapidly as hand could transcribe thought Tup wrote [illegible]

The city editor was very much surprised. "Is this how [illegible] of the [illegible]" he asked.

Tup didn't know what [illegible] meant then and went home without saying a word but [illegible] that he was being guyed.

Next day the managing editor received a note from one of the parties Tup had interviewed. It complimented the paper on having been the only journal to correctly report him.

Tup has since told me that he made the drawings with a purpose while the gentlemen were talking. Many a time since then I have known him to return to the reportorial rooms with half a dozen disconnected sentences in his note book and as many etchings and write from the whole a three column story remarkable for its accuracy.

From these facts I am led to believe that the brain works something on the order that Edison has put into his phonograph and that each occurrence it records may be produced by chance or premeditated contact with any object with which we may have associated it at the time of record. In the case of the phonograph the thing is evolved by turning a crank; in the case of Col Baker it is done by turning the leaves of a book; in the case of Tupper by simply looking at his etching of the man whose conversation he wishes his own brain to repeat for him.

TROUBLE FOR JERSEY DEMOCRACY

The Alliance With the Liquor Ring Which Now Proposes to Have What it Bargained For

Trenton Letter to New York Herald

The campaign fund which helped the election of the democratic legislature came from the proprietors of the great breweries, chiefly in Essex, Hudson and Passaic counties. What the brewers want most is the repeal of the high license clause in the liquor law of last winter. They don't care so much for local option, as that would be voted down in their own counties and most others. The high license clause affects them directly. This is understood by every one who knows how thousands of beer saloons are started and kept on foot. Anybody who has capital enough to secure a room and a few cheap bar room fixtures can start in the beer business in the counties named. The brewer pays for a license, which is the greatest cash outlay at the start, and furnishes a small supply of beer to begin with taking a chattel mortgage on the fixtures and furniture and sometimes on the household furniture of the seller. Notwithstanding the supposed profits of the business these mortgages are seldom lifted. One not familiar with the situation would be surprised at the number of even the more pretentious saloons which are under mortgage. It is estimated that the brewers pay for the licenses and have a mortgage on more than six tenths of all the beer saloons in New Jersey. It makes a great difference to them whether they have to pay from $30 to $50 for a license as formerly or $250 under the present law. It was on this point that the brewers made the stubborn and energetic fight at the late election which gave the democrats the legislature.

THE QUESTION OF DEFEAT

The brewers are beginning to open their eyes with fear that after all they are going to be "left." Some of the leaders of the party talk of hedging and are considering whether the democrats can do anything more at Trenton next winter than to make some few amendments to the local option part of the liquor law. They fear that a majority of the people of the state however they may differ as to prohibition and local option rely favor high license which so far as it has been tried has worked satisfactorily to the general public. In Paterson for instance the increased revenue from licenses has been over $40 000 with a less number of saloons. Then the city government is newly and substantially paving one of the principal streets with the increase of money put into the treasury by the high license law. A leading democratic official of Newark said a day or two ago that they had wanted a new school house badly in a certain locality, that funds were exhausted and more could not be raised without excessive taxation. Just then the high license money began to pour in and now they are erecting a $40 000 school house through the aid of this fund. It is calculated that the new law will add $500 000 or more to the Newark city treasury and it will knock out of business from 300 to 500 saloons. This democrat said: "I don't believe our members would dare vote for repeal of the law." The brewers don't like this and they are said to threaten that if they are to be treated this way in the house of their supposed friends, they will button up their pockets next year and allow the republicans to carry the state. But if the brewers don't like high license there is reason to believe that a majority of the voters do. When you can appeal both to morality and cupidity it makes a powerful combination fully capable of coping with beer and boodle.

THE TRUMP CARD

The brewers will show fight at once. One of Mr Kreger's newly elected assemblymen in Essex has announced that there shall be no United States senator elected by the democrats until that party faces the music by the repeal of the liquor law of the last session. It is ascertained that this man's threats will be promptly sat down upon when he gets to Trenton but the success of such an attempt will depend much on whether it is or is not Mr Krueger and the brewers who will endeavor to sit down upon him.

A reason given for the weakening of the democratic leaders on the proposition to repeal the liquor legislation of last winter is the fact that whatever action they may take must be followed by an election for governor next autumn. They fear to submit such an issue to the people. The returns of the late election show that the prohibitionists still hold the balance of power and on an issue involving the repeal of the high license law they would vote with the republicans and be joined in this by thousands of temperance democrats especially in such counties as Sussex, Warren and Monmouth. There are also a great many high license democrats in the cities and villages who would be against their party in the repeal of the high license law. There is good reason for the leading democrats to doubt the wisdom of seriously interfering with the present liquor law at the coming session even should it bring down upon them the wrath of the brewers and saloon keepers who were such potent allies at the polls this year. New Jersey is not so firmly held by the democratic party as the recent whoop of victory would lead superficial observers to suppose and it will be necessary for that party's future success to go a little slow in repealing the present liquor laws.

The Pennsylvania Vote

HARRISBURG Pa Nov 21.—The entire returns from all counties in the state have reached the state department. For president almost 1 000 000 votes were cast as follows: Harrison 526 091, Cleveland 446 200, Fisk, 20 748, Streeter (labor) 3860. Total (including scattering votes) 997 224. Harrison's plurality is 79 571. Harrison's majority over all is 54 968.

The vote for president in 1884 was as follows: Blaine, 473 804; Cleveland, 392 785; St John, 15 737; Butler (labor) 17 002. Blaine's plurality was 81,019. Blaine's majority over all was 48,280.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS.

The Farming Prospects Throughout the Pacific Northwest are Excellent

The Ripening of Pears—The Sheep and Wool Industry—Grasses for Pasture—Farming Must be Varied to Succeed

Throughout the Pacific northwest farmers have had a good fall season on which shows in wheat fields green as emerald and very different from what one has seen who has come West through the great wheat belt so much is said about. Rains set in earlier than usual here and very fortunately have extended to the wheat lands east of the Cascades as well as through the western valleys of Oregon. The word failure is not often written on these Pacific harvests and the plenteousness of yield boasted of many years ago continue with wonderful regularity. There is no other region that is blessed with such natural conditions as the west coast enjoys and has so truthful a soil as well as climate forces that are immutable and unchangeable. If our soil did not enjoy the fructifying influences insured by the great western ocean, its winds and its ceaseless currents and its ebbing tides, then Oregon and the west shore would not possess the elements of prosperity that now exist and are seen to be favorable to our prosperity. These are the grand surroundings that are often accident to the Occident of America.

One of the most pleasing rules for clover of nature would be to penetrate the secrets that nature holds inviolate, that man, as his superior intelligence wrest from the earth for his own use. There are secrets concerning the soil and production that should be solved and thus permit to utilize that are now hermetically locked away from humanity to be made available. One of these relates to the soil of arid regions; if man could know what cultivation they require he could grow harvests sufficient to reimburse his labors. Tests made of different soils north of Snake river show that such soils have power to resist drouth and the question remains as to what cultivation can command their harvests.

Every farmer should be a philosopher and study nature. The greatest discoveries of time have been made by such investigation and it should go on unceasingly. Here in Western Oregon nature has been kindly and hidden few secrets from man. Crops come as the result of common farming and the land surprises man by the extent of its fertility. It is where the ordinary course of nature is changed that the struggle for mastery comes. Man has only to plow and plant or sow and then comes the harvest. If no untoward circumstances occur Western Oregon will reap a grand harvest in 1889.

THE RIPENING OF PEARS

Most summer pears cannot be trusted to ripen fully on the tree, the open wind and sunshine carry away their delicate aroma and flavor. As fast as they begin to show the color of maturity they should be picked and placed in still air, not too dry, there quietly to complete the changes which develop sweetness and fine flavor. But even there the flavor soon dissipates, and to enjoy it each pear must be eaten just as soon as ripeness is complete, for decay immediately follows. No fruit is finer than a fine pear so managed. A good test of their being fit to pick is when the stem separates from the spur on which it grew by its natural disseverment. If the stem is broken elsewhere it will leak and the fruit will begin to shrivel and will lose quality.

Winter pears are treated similarly. They should be left on the tree as long as safe from frost, and then placed on a tray in a cool cellar and covered with a cloth or otherwise to keep the air still about them. Some sorts, most unpromising when taken in, develop fine color and delicious quality if patiently left thus protected to the slow processes of change which bring on final maturity. The proper cellar temperature is a few degrees above freezing but as soon as the pears show color they should be taken to a warm room to develop full flavor still wrapped or covered to prevent shriveling.—New York Tribune.

SHEEP AND THE WOOL INDUSTRY

Hon F K Moreland of New York secretary of the American Agricultural and Dairy Association has gathered and published some facts showing the value and importance of sheep husbandry and the wool industry. He says:

For years wool has been one of our most important agricultural productions, exceeded only in value by corn, hay, wheat, cotton and oats, so that the question is of paramount importance. The annual value of our wool crop is nearly if not quite $100 000 000.

It is difficult to estimate the actual production of mutton but the value of this branch of sheep husbandry must be at least $[illegible] 000 000.

As the importation and consumption of foreign raw wools exceed one fourth of the amount consumed in this country it proves that the tariff is not an onerous burden but rather a necessity required by an important industry.

The fact that for years our home market has been close to the tariff line enabling a certain amount of foreign wools to be imported and to be sold in competition with our native wool proves beyond peradventure that any further reduction of the tariff on wool is not needed by the country while it would practically destroy the wool industry.

During the year ending June 30 1888, there was imported into the United States 10[illegible] 549 pounds of unmanufactured wool from different countries of a total value of $11 [illegible] 12 97, upon which were paid duties to the amount of $5 126 108 35.

During the year ending June 30 1887 there was imported 114 404 173 pounds of a total value of $16 351 409 97 and the amount of duties paid was $5 899 516 63.

During the year ending June 30 1887 there was imported nearly one third of the entire amount of raw wool used in the country.

GREAT EXPORT OF ENGLISH PRIZE SHEEP

To day the Liverpool steamer Oxenholme is due to arrive at Montreal and will land in the Dominion the largest number of prize sheep ever imported there by one steamer. The Oxenholme has on board 800 live sheep and of these upwards of 500 belong to Messrs Thomas, Williams and Newton, sheep importers of Indiana and Ohio, U S A. The sheep are for show and breeding purposes in the United States and Canada and an idea of their great value and merit may be inferred from the fact that they comprise the leading prize winners at the principal agricultural shows throughout England this summer including the Royal agricultural show lately held at Nottingham. Amongst the number too also is a pen of five ewes which took first prize at Warwickshire in 1887 as lambs and followed this success up this year by carrying off the first prizes at the Royal Agricultural Show at Nottingham for any age or breed. There are other sheep on the Oxenholme which are two or three times royal winners. Of the others there are 80 ewes of a choice show description and 250 stock ewes selected from the fine flocks in England. Ninety rams and lambs are included in the consignment by the Oxenholme many of which have secured prizes. There are also equally valuable sheep selected by Mr John Dryden, Brooklyn, Canada, and 105 sheep on other account are going by the steamer. The American and Canadian breeders are evidently making a great bid to excel the home breeders both in quality and the number of animals produced.—Liverpool Journal of Commerce, August [illegible]

LICE ON SWINE

Many farmers overlook small things and wonder that results are not better. They feed swine and wonder that they do not fatten fast when the truth is their swine are infested with lice and they are so tormented they cannot gain flesh. The extent to which lice injure swine can be gathered from the following taken from an Iowa paper:

"Some of the best hog breeders in the country send out hogs just swarming with lice. Not long since we saw at a railroad station a pair of choice Poland Chinas from one of the most popular breeders in Illinois going to an Iowa farmer. There were thousands of lice on them. There is, or should be, a constant war on lice on swine. They are not hard to destroy, but it has to be done in the right way, and not spasmodically but constant watchfulness must be exercised. Cleanse hogs perfectly, and it is probable in two weeks or a month they will be infested as badly as ever. They always operate the worst on the weakest but are not averse to sucking the lifeblood of the thriftiest and stoutest. Do the best you can and there will always be a few left to attend the funerals and to begin the great work of multiplication again. Get your hogs into a close pen at least twice a month and syringe them with an emulsion of coal oil and butter milk."

GRASSES FOR PASTURES

In answer to Mr J B Stump's request for a list of the grass seeds that are to be had here and are suited to the purpose of seeding pasture lands, THE OREGONIAN replies as follows: The common seeds as we state elsewhere are the three common varieties of clover—red white and alsike—and orchard grass, Kentucky blue grass, English blue grass, English and Italian rye grass and tall meadow oat grass. This last however is used more for meadows than for pasture. Timothy as explained elsewhere, is not suited to pastures because it is not a long lived grass. Mr Stump refers to Sutton's seed, but Sutton recommends English rye grass for permanent seeding as more stocky and reliable than Italian though Italian rye grass is very excellent and considered the best for fattening beef cattle. Meadow fescue is another grass that is to be procured here of seedsmen and that serves well to mix in for pastures. Mesquite grass—so called—was quite popular with Oregonians for some years. It was supposed to be the Texas mesquite but proved to be velvet grass and of no special value whatever. Many have worked hard to establish it as a sod on their land but when well established it is comparatively worthless. Stock pass over it and eat any grass or clover in preference. Then a hard winter killed it so that very little was left and those who had it did not grow. Animals would eat it and do well when there was no other grass but it has not proved satisfactory. Tall meadow oat grass is more for meadows than pasture. English blue grass, seedmen say, is the same as meadow fescue. There has been quite a demand for tall meadow oat grass from up the valley but farmers who lack a thorough knowledge of grasses are apt to mistake. They do not find grasses permanent that they take a fancy to and are disappointed. Mr S G Reed has thoroughly tested the English rye grass and indorses it is the best variety he has ever tried, and probably his experience is more reliable at that point than any other person's in Oregon. Sutton recommends Italian rye grass for several years run as THE OREGONIAN has stated this summer.

To sum up the situation then you have the several varieties of clover, orchard grass, English and Italian rye grass, blue grass and the meadow fescue procurable, and with these you can make a good pasture. For fodder plants to make hay or ensilage there are various kinds and you can test them at your leisure. When we come to doing thorough work in that line Oregon farmers will have made a decided step of progress.

While on the subject of pastures it is well enough to call attention to the fact that all should be aware of, that meat production is well established as being the most profitable line of farm economy. Men who have grown old in that business bear evidence that while they make more money than when they merely raised staple crops, they also maintained their soil in better condition than those did who exhausted their land with crops and returned nothing to restore the fertility thus endangered. Feeding to produce meat or to carry on dairying, proved far better for the land. These methods necessitated growing clover and as a result of plowing this under once in a while the land was strengthened and made self sustaining while land that was cropped steadily deteriorated.

THE GOLDEN MEAN.

With cream there is a certain stage of ripeness if I may use the term for the want of a better which will not only secure the greatest amount of butter from a given amount of cream, but will likewise produce the finest flavored article. Vary this either way and you will meet with disappointment. Unripened cream makes less butter, overripe cream inferior butter.

How shall this golden mean be secured? I answer only by patient observance and painstaking efforts. There are no set rules that will always secure the same invariable results, and experience, tempered by judgment, is the best guide. Under certain atmospheric conditions cream will ripen sooner than others, or the kind of feed that is eaten will influence the ripening process. I have observed that corn meal fed a little in excess will hasten the ripening of the cream but the butter therefrom was soft and oily. On the other hand an excess of bran feed will retard not only the process of ripening but churning as well, and the butter will be pale and sickly looking as well as crumbly, despite your best efforts. Any or all of these causes combined help to make butter failures. It is only close observation and prompt action that will insure you continued success at the churn. After the cream is skimmed into the receptacle for ripening, best crock pan bucket or jar, stir it frequently, say once every day at least—the aeration is a help in the churning. Keep it at a uniform temperature if possible—never allow it to get too warm—keep below rather than above the required temperature. If necessary you can easily raise to the required temperature but once get above the requisite heat and your product is spoiled, manipulate it as you may. You can no more doctor scalded butter than you can mend a broken leg.—Dairy Bulletin.

TOO NARROW A MARGIN

Wheat bears a good price the present year, as compared with ordinary years of recent times but Dakota falls short 20 000 000 bushels of growing as much as was raised there in 1887. August saw a fearful frost that slaughtered the standing grain and spoiled the harvest. The farmers of that region pin all their hopes on this one staple. They produce very little else and depend on wheat to bring them through. It is probably true that they suffered a greater disappointment than often falls to the lot of men. To have a waving field turning golden for the harvest and see a blight touch and ruin it in a single night must be a terrible trial. It was nearly so some years ago when a sultry July shower turned tens of thousands tons of Oregon wheat to rust and ruined it. These experiences show how unreliable it is to trust to a single crop and pin all your hopes to one prospect. Farming must be varied to succeed and while it is not easy in the early days of a new country to accomplish the idea of mixed farming, it should be the aim of every producer to have a variety of products as soon as possible. The time has come when this is possible here in Oregon and it is an indication that we are approaching a more settled and complete order of things and are leaving the days of infant statehood behind. Yes our country is approaching a better organized condition and a more reliable civilization where all industries find room.

ENGLISH FRUIT

A London fruit dealer says: Advices received up to the present from sixty seven districts report the crop to be below the average in forty six districts while in only five cases is it classed as average or satisfactory. From this it will be seen that the English crop is at least a partial failure as regards extent and in quality also is said to be below the average.

On the other hand the continental crop of apples promise well and are likely to be large and good. Notwithstanding this we look for a favorable reception during the season for American and Canadian fruit well packed and of good size and quality but would strongly advise our friends to avoid shipping small or common fruit as such is likely to yield poor results. The shipment of summer fruit is at all times attended with much risk, on account of its soft character but small parcels of the best keeping varieties occasionally give satisfactory returns.

ECONOMY OF ENSILAGE

Mrs L Jones of Brockville Canada writes to the Country Gentleman giving a very clear statement of the superior advantage of ensilage for the feed of the dairy cows. Mrs Jones is one of the most noted of Jersey breeders on this continent and from our own inspection of her methods of management we are confident that her experience will prove valuable to others. We give the closing paragraphs of her report:

In estimating my herd, I have counted every beast under three [illegible] half a one, so that I may [illegible] fed thirty animals on [illegible] months. Each of these [illegible] consumed twenty pounds [illegible] that been their fodder [illegible] five pounds of hay daily [illegible] fodder being ensilage [illegible] fifteen pounds of hay [illegible] thirty head of cattle, [illegible] figures) to six and [illegible] month and in the five [illegible] three and three fourths [illegible] price of hay this winter [illegible] the thirty three and [illegible] would have cost me a [illegible]

Now as to the cost of [illegible]

Rent of ten acres of land

Plowing, harrowing and planting

Twenty five bushels of seed corn

Cost of equivalent in hay

Saving through ensilage

I have made no estimate [illegible] increased yield of milk and [illegible] that would form quite a large [illegible] to the condition of my cattle [illegible] herd and purchasers from [illegible] estimating cost of plowing [illegible] I did not have to hire extra [illegible] I put it down at what my team cost me which is [illegible] the labor. I should not [illegible] we had only half a crop or [illegible] worst corn season we ever [illegible] the land. This year off [illegible] of land I expect to get [illegible] crop and at no greater expense.

BROWNSVILLE NOTES.

BROWNSVILLE Or Nov 25th

The weather is damp and rainy but the hills all around us are green and the fall grain is growing finely

Mr Wm B Smith has moved into the town of South Brownsville and his step daughter Miss Effie Dean is very sick

Mrs R N Thorapon is preparing to go to San Francisco to visit her mother for a few weeks

Dr R H Curl has gone on a professional trip east of the mountains for a month

Quite a number of hunters have gone up into the mountains the past week after deer

At a meeting of Calapooya Lodge No 43 I O O F held last night the following officers were duly elected G V Standish N G C W Primly V G Geo Kindle R S J K McHargue P S W R Kirk Treas N B Standish L H Leswick D M Waiter trustees

The basket supper advertised to come off on the night of Thanksgiving for the purpose of raising money to improve the cemetery has been postponed two weeks on account of sickness here

There is some talk of having a newspaper started here shortly and as there is no paper in the southern part of the county and we are having quite an emigration and our mineral resources are beginning to attract some attention we ought to have a paper

Messrs S and Jos Templeton have just returned from a short prospecting trip east of the mountains They were on track of a rich silver lead

Rev Mr Medbury of Salem preached twice here in the Baptist church to day The Baptists here have had no regular pastor for the past three months but at a meeting held yesterday they decided to employ Rev Mr LeRoy of Astoria

Nearly all our citizens have got vaccinated and our smallpox scare has about died out.

Mr J K McHargue has bought out Mr John Stenger the baker here Mr S goes to Tacoma W T

The woolen mills have got their supply of wool nearly worked up and about the close of the year it is rumored that the mills will close down for awhile and some changes be made in the company but it is said that operations will soon begin again by either part of the old managers or a new company With such a name and business as this mill has built up they surely cannot afford to long remain idle or quit work entirely

MR MOODY'S WORK

[Communicated]

Last Saturday Mr Moody spoke for the last time to a Seattle audience and had the largest crowd that has been in attendance since the meetings opened in the city He went to Tacoma and a gentleman who attended the meetings there on Sunday says the hall, though the largest in Tacoma was full to the uttermost More than 1200 men alone attended the 4 o'clock meeting in the afternoon and over 200 made a start in the straight and narrow road that leads to life

The meeting at night was a crowded house again standing room being all taken, and when one of the workers from Seattle tried to secure entrance a stalwart policeman notified him that the last man had taken his room and that he must wait for the next meeting

The two helpers Mr Stuld and Mr Winslow both wealthy Englishmen are with him and render him great service in all the meetings

These two gentlemen are in the work from a love for the labor and take charge of the prayer meetings and assist in the Inquiry Room work

A letter from Mr Moody to day says he will remain in Seattle until Thursday of the present week

SAPOLIO

and you will win

Is there any melody in work? Work is considered irksome—troublesome—unpleasant. If it does not accord with our desires it makes discord in our hearts. But to people who are trained to do rightly work is one of the best amusements and knows no discord. There is melody in work. If the one who works uses the best methods and combines wisdom with the work then it goes forward joyfully. Sapolio is the best method of doing all house cleaning. No 26

WILBOR'S COMPOUND OF PURE COD LIVER OIL AND PHOSPHATES OF LIME, SODA, IRON.

Cures Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Debility, Wasting Diseases and Scrofulous Humors

The advantages of this compound over the plain oil is that the nauseating taste of the oil is entirely removed and the whole rendered palatable The offensive taste of the oil has long acted as a great objection to its use but in this form the trouble is obviated A host of certificates might be given here to testify to the excellence and success of Wilbor's Cod Liver Oil and Lime but the fact that it is regularly prescribed by the medical faculty is sufficient. SENT TO THE PENITENTIARY

The Young Highwayman and Burglar, Martin, Sentenced Yesterday.

Hanlon Will Have to Serve an Additional Year on the Old Charge—Exceptions to Joe Holladay's Answer

Willie Brown and George Hanlon the young boys who pleaded guilty to robbing George Hingley in the criminal court Saturday were sentenced to the penitentiary for one year each by Judge Stearns yesterday Hanlon has two years of prison life before him as the court removed the embargo from his previous sentence of one year for complicity in the robbery of G Arata & Co s safe Hanlon and Brown will be kept in the county jail to testify against their confederate Charles Garwood who will plead to-day A motion to quash the indictment in his case was filed yesterday but was withdrawn

Charles Martin with whose arrest several weeks ago ceased the innumerable hotel and lodging-house burglaries then prevalent assumed a bold front withdrew his plea of not guilty to stealing a watch from the Revere house and pleaded guilty

What is the nature of the charge against this man? the court asked

When arrested he was relieved of a number of stolen watches and burglars tool replied District Attorney McGinn

Attorney Sears for the defense objected to this statement and when he was through talking the court asked Martin if he had anything to say why sentence should not be passed upon him

Yes sir stammered the prisoner "The state of Oregon has but one case against me as the other property found on me does not belong to any one here When I was arrested a number of burglaries were being committed and I had to stand the brunt of them

Is that all you have to say? asked the judge

Yes sir I hope you will be lenient with me

The extent of the court s leniency was four years in the penitentiary

John Bradley and John Fitzgerald indicted for stealing trousers pleaded guilty to petty larceny and were sentenced to three months in the county jail

THE HOLLADAY CASE AGAIN

The attorneys for Ben Holladay s widow filed in the county court yesterday two motions to strike out parts of Executor Joe s answers to Mrs Holladay s petitions given in full the other day

They object to those portions of Joe s documents which say that Mrs Holladay s opposition to the executor prevented his qualification, that Ben Holladay owned a large amount of property but was never entitled to it that at the time of his death he did not have the means to pay his funeral expenses that none of the property ever came into his (Joe s) possession that his inventory is a complete one that he has neither received nor disbursed moneys All these objections are found with the answer to the petition for the appraisement of the estate

In the answer to the application for allowance of arrears, objection is found to the portion reading that the order giving Mrs Holladay an allowance was made on ex parte application that he (Joe) believed that the order would not have been made had the true condition of affairs been known that the widow has ample means of her own to defray her expenses

FEES FOR PAUPER CRIMINALS.

The application of Attorney Robert G Morrow for an allowance for the defense of pauper prisoners was argued before Judge Stearns yesterday and was taken under advisement It was maintained in behalf of Mr Morrow that such service was particular service according to the Oregon constitution

DECISIONS TO DAY

Judge Stearns will announce decisions this morning in the cases of Hattie Wilson vs Chas Wilson and Chas F Tigard vs Anna M Tigard

POLICE COURT DOCKET

The usual number of drunks occupied the criminal bench in the police court yesterday afternoon The cases were disposed of as follows Jas Carroll, disorderly fined $10 Fiddler William J C Keenan and William Strain drunk $10 each Dan Holt Alex Armstrong and Steve Maher drunks forfeited $5 bail each John William Charles McCarthy Dan McLaughlin and James Quigley drunks $5 each Blanch Fertier soliciting forfeited $20 bail Phil Laughton assault and battery on Richard Wolf did not appear and forfeited $10 bail

James Stewart arrested some time ago for shooting the notorious Hickory Johnson was yesterday bound over to appear before the grand jury in the sum of $250 bail

Tom Rogers arraigned on a charge of stealing a cloak from Mrs. Adams on Fifth street was held to answer in the sum of $250 bail

August Kubel and Ed Peitzker were charged with assault and battery on each other The difficulty arose out of a row in a saloon and as is usual in such case the trouble was first settled by the fistic route and then taken into court. Kubel was fined $5 and Peitzker $15

SMITH FINED $50

W A Smith an employment agent doing business with the Pioneer Employment Agency at No 106½ First street was yesterday arraigned in Justice Tuttle's court on a charge of larceny by bailee of $10 The complaint was sworn to by John Lundberg

It appears that Smith for a consideration of $10 sent Lundberg to locate on some government land in Washington territory giving him a letter to a party at La Center On reaching there no government land was found open for settlement and the letter written was not recognized by the party to whom Lundberg had been sent. No name was appended to the letter

Lundberg returned and demanded his money This was refused and the arrest followed. It was very evident to the court that crooked work had been done, and for the purpose of protecting immigrants and intending settlers and to discourage this kind of business the heaviest fine of $50 was imposed on the defendant

ANOTHER HANLON

On complaint of Fred Tucker a warrant was yesterday sworn out for the arrest of James Hanlon father of the notorious Hanlon kid who has given the police so much trouble of late Tucker charges Hanlon with the offense of assault with a dangerous weapon and as an evidence of the truth of the charge he showed a large cut on the back of his coat which he claims was made by a knife in the hands of Hanlon Hanlon will have an examination in Justice Tuttle's court at 10 o-clock this morning

LARCENY OF A BED QUILT

Mrs M Riemann yesterday swore out warrants for the arrest of Mr J Henry and Mrs Peckworth charging them with the larceny of a bed quilt valued at $15

ARREST OF FRED LYNCH

On a warrant sworn out in Justice Phelan s court on information from William Moorehead Fred Lynch was arrested early yesterday morning on a charge of illicit cohabitation with Mrs Emma McAlpin Lynch was taken to court later in the day and placed under $1000 bonds in default of which he was taken to the county jail

A CHINESE ROW

In Justice Tuttle s court yesterday Ah You swore out a complaint for the arrest of a brother Chinaman Wong Lock on a charge of assault and battery There was a controversy over the ownership of $3 and Ah You claims that while held by another party he was beat with an iron bar by Wong Lock Wong Lock furnished $50 bail and will have a hearing this afternoon

DEATH OF D W PRENTICE

The funeral services of the late D W Prentice took place at the First Congregational church yesterday afternoon Rev T E Clapp presiding and the remains were laid to rest in Lone Fir cemetery

Mr Prentice had been quite ill for some weeks before he would give up and seek medical aid. His case at length assumed such a serious phase that he was taken to St. Vincent's hospital, where he received every attention and the most skillful treatment, but in vain. Blood poisoning ensued and on Sunday morning he passed peacefully away.

His wife and daughter, who have been sojourning at Los Angeles and were expecting him to come down were not informed of his condition till it became critical when they at once started for Portland arriving here on Friday in time to soothe the last hours of the husband and father

Mr Prentice came from Massachusetts accompanied by his wife and infant daughter in 1868 and located in Salem where they remained several years and then removed to this city and opened the music house which bears his name He was an honest and upright business man and a devoted and loving husband and father

Mrs and Miss Prentice are deeply grateful to friends for kindness shown to Mr Prentice during his illness and for the sympathy extended to them in their affliction

TROUBLE IN THE REGIMENT.

Col Beebe Complains of the Conduct of the Light Battery

Capt Riley, of the Accused Organization Charges That the Colonel Boasted That He Would Ruin the Battery

Col Charles F Beebe commanding the First regiment of the Oregon National Guard sent a long letter to the county court yesterday complaining of the conduct of Portland Light Battery which is commanded by Capt W J Riley and asking for relief

Col Beebe charges that the battery has absolutely refused and neglected to bear its proportion of the current expenses of maintaining the regimental armory that it declines to pay the $10 a month levied to meet gas and other charges though the bill has been frequently rendered

Col Beebe goes on to say that he gave the battery the use of the large drill room on the second floor on Saturday evenings that the battery at first declined then agreed to take Monday night in connection with Co I and afterward asked for Saturday but other arrangements had been made and the battery could not be accommodated in this regard

Capt Riley who was present in court when the letter was read said that Col Beebe had openly boasted that he would ruin the battery He said that a great cause of the trouble was that the armory could not be secured before 9 o clock Monday night

He said that the battery was refused its share of the the receipts of regimental ball given early in the year and that Col Beebe had asked it to help pay the armorer in face of the fact that the battery employed a man especially to look after its quarters

Judge Catlin and the commissioners regret exceedingly that there should be any cause for trouble in the regiment but it has been brewing for some time as every guardsman knows and had to come out some time or other

The judge placed Col Beebe's complaint in the hands of Commissioner Dunne and appointed him and Commissioner Smith a committee to investigate

ADDITION TO THE COURT HOUSE.

It Will Cost $48,000 and Work Will Begin in the Spring

Architect McCaw has completed the plans for the projected south wing to the court house which will cost when finished and ready for occupancy close to $48 000 It will be of the general form of the north wing and will give the big hall of justice what it has long lacked—architectural symmetry

The ground floor will be part of the county jail It will be fitted up with sixteen large steel cells high enough to be fitted up with a sufficient number of bunks to accommodate three men each Three sides of the cell will be solid and the fourth grating The cells will be so arranged that all can be opened and closed simultaneously or separately Surrounding the cells will be an iron railing enclosing a corridor, in which the prisoners may exercise themselves Outside this cell will be another corridor extending all around the cells and the prisoners corridor The trusty or jailer in this corridor can keep a splendid guard over the men under his charge In addition there will be a dark cell to be beneath the present private office of County Judge Catlin It is just what is wanted County Jailer Dougherty is highly pleased with the arrangement

On the first floor will be located the county judge s private office in the southwest corner the county court room in the southeast corner and the office of the clerk of the county court The quarters now occupied by Clerk Wheeler will be made into a large vault for the deposition of his documents The entrance to his new office will be surrounded by a railing where those having business requiring attention will be met by a young man employed to take care of such business County Recorder Dudley will stay where he is The present county court room and the judge s private office adjoining will be left vacant until they are needed

In the upper portion of the wing will be situated the grand and petit jury rooms the witness room and the offices of District Attorney McGinn and School Superintendent Wetzell, which are now on the first floor of the old building

Work on the wing will begin in the spring

A CRACKSMAN GETS HIS DESERTS.

Thomas Wallace alias William Martin Goes Up to Do the State Some Service

The person yesterday sentenced to four years in the penitentiary by Judge Stearns for burglary under the name of William Martin is a noted San Francisco crook, and his true name is Thomas Wallace He is one of the persons implicated in the theft of Toby Rosenthal s celebrated picture of Elaine several years since has served a term in San Quentin been brought back from the east by the officers of justice and is in short a noted criminal

Some time since when burglaries of rooms were numerous here Policeman Barry wrote to Detective Bainbridge who has charge of the Rogues' gallery in San Francisco to know what San Francisco crooks were up here and especially to know where Tom Wallace was Detective Bainbridge replied that Wallace had been discharged from San Quentin but his whereabouts were unknown

Mr Barry had an idea that it was Wallace who was robbing rooms here, and he and Policeman Griffin kept a sharp lookout for him When things got warm here Wallace went over to the Sound and committed a few robberies there, but kept his hand in When he returned Barry met him on the street and determined to take him in He accordingly arrested Wallace whom he had known years ago in San Francisco saying

Tom I am going to take you down to the jail I suppose you thought I did not know you

Wallace weakened at once and on the way to the jail told Barry he had $125 in his pocket Barry replied that it was no good to him On searching Wallace the nippers used in turning keys in locks were found on him and he told Barry where his satchel could be found In it were five gold watches which have since been restored to their owners and two silver watches one of which Wallace says is his own and the other will be restored to its owner

Barry did not try to influence the court against Wallace by giving his past record and Wallace concluded to plead guilty and try for a light sentence Four years probably seems heavy enough to him The fellow is a shrewd scoundrel and but for the bold play made by Mr Barry might have still been carrying on his work here Wallace since he made up his mind to plead guilty has talked freely of his work in this state He says the Tumer who kicked up a row about losing $15 only lost $50 and [illegible] man who [illegible] rolled [illegible] large sum [illegible] Wallace [illegible] man who [illegible] better in the penitentiary than out of it

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

A reward will be paid for the return of two watches lost November 10 1888 For further particulars address John Young, corner A and Second streets.

TACOMA HAS THE SMALLPOX

She Impudently Talks of Quarantining Against the Metropolis.

This Step Talked of in Face of the Fact That Her Posthouse Contains Two More Patients Than the Portland One

Every day adds a new nail to the coffin of the false unfounded story about smallpox sent abroad by the irresponsible News and taken up and more thoroughly disseminated by equally unreliable country papers whose only object was to make it appear that Portland was a pest ridden city

Now the Portland people have the laugh on the people of Tacoma one of whom in conjunction with the mendacious course of the thoroughly contemptible Ledger have taken especial pains to spread the unfounded story broadcast

Sunday Dr Miller the health officer of that town arrived here with letters of introduction from the mayor to Mayor DeLashmutt but was unable to find him he being out of the city so he sought Chief of Police Parrish and delivered his letter which was to the effect that it was current in Tacoma that there was no end of smallpox in Portland that there was some talk of quarantining against this city which many favored and others opposed, that it was deemed advisable to send Dr Miller to Portland to investigate and report on the advisability of taking the proposed step concluding by asking that the officer be extended every courtesy to enable him to prosecute his investigation

Chief Parrish received the visiting officer very courteously and turned him over to City Physician Meyer with instructions to help Dr Miller in whatever manner possible The two officers spent several hours together during which time they visited all the smallpox patients in the city except two the Kellogg boys after which they visited the pesthouse Dr Miller expressed a great deal of pleasure at the way the Portland physicians have handled the disease and the quarantine method Then they returned to police headquarters where Dr Miller heartily thanked Chief Parrish for the kind treatment and returned home on the night train

You Tacoma people have been talking of quarantining against Portland, but I think if any quarantining is to be done we should do it don't you know said the chief with a smile

Dr Miller smiled and in reply to another question of Chief Parrish s replied that there were nine cases in the Tacoma pesthouse It might be well enough to remark right here for the benefit of the Ledger and the other circulators of the false statement that there are only seven patients in the Portland pesthouse

Before going Dr Miller expressed his satisfaction on account of his visit He said I heard in Tacoma that there were 150 cases in Portland and I was sent here to investigate

"CHIP O THE OLD BLOCK"

Successful Production of This Musical Comedy—A Laughter Provoking Entertainment.

It was an exceedingly clever company of fun makers that made their introductory bow to a Portland audience last evening at the New Park theatre in the musical and comical melange Chip o' the Old Block' Though there was nothing in the title of the play to announce the nature of it yet from the rise to the final fall of the curtain there was something to amuse

The play is one of those sketchy productions with a mere thread of a plot running through it like Fun on the Bristol etc just enough to string a number of clever and amusing specialties upon it and if well done cannot fail of success Of course all depends upon the people who are to fill in the comedy and the musical work

This company is happy in the possession of four very clever and artistic people upon whom falls the brunt of the evening s work

As the wooden legged Commodore veteran sailor and old salt generally Robert L Scott was an immense success His make-up was simply perfection and he carried out the idea of the role and manipulated his wooden leg in such a grotesque though natural manner as to bring down the house

Miss Jessie Bonstelle as Pixey the waif ward and heiress made a decidedly favorable impression She is young winsome and thoroughly natural in her soubrette work Her singing is pleasing her dancing graceful and altogether she is a most attractive little artiste. Her imitations of different nationalities in reciting Mary s Little Lamb was a most clever piece of work

Henry Mills as Jack Lightfoot the English jockey did some fine work He is easy natural possesses a good voice which he uses with judgment and does his work in a neat clean-cut style that betokens the true artist His songs in the second act were enthusiastically applauded and he was compelled to respond to repeated encores

Barney Reynolds as the janitor did some very clever comedy work, as did also J C Sturgis as Zeph Spanker, an old salt

Helen Norton made a capital Jerusha Her makeup was an old maid angling for a husband and her attempts upon the Commodore were exceedingly amusing

Miss Marie LaFella as Francisca does not speak loud enough to inform the audience why she is there The remainder of the cast is equal to all demands and the play throughout goes with a snap and a dash that cannot fail to please The elevator scene in the second act is one of the most amusing scenes we have seen for a long time

The play fairly bristles with sparkling musical and comedy effects and cannot fail of a successful run Chip O the Old Block all the week

THANKSGIVING CONCERT EXERCISES

A Most Creditable and Enjoyable Programme Rendered at the First Congregational Church

Sunday evening a Thanksgiving concert exercise was rendered by the Sunday school children connected with the First Congregational church in a pleasing and effective manner The exercise throughout was original and unique in its character and very appropriate to the occasion

The committee having the matter in charge deserve to be highly commended for their laborious and painstaking efforts in drilling the little folks in their respective parts, and the little folks should have special mention for the quality of their work and the heartiness and spirit with which they entered into it

Where all did so well it would seem invidious to particularize still the unusual excellence of two of the young people in the parts assigned them would seem to require particular notice Miss Ingersoll recently from La Crosse Wis who delivered the opening address in a simple and unaffected manner yet in so clear and well modulated a tone as to render her words singularly eloquent and impressive

Master Ray Steel a general favorite who has done well but who this time outdid any of his previous effort The little fellow spoke with the utmost freedom and composure and by his enunciation and emphasis gave evidence of a full understanding of what he was saying

A large audience was present who heartily enjoyed every moment of the exercises Taken altogether this concert was the most effective and best conducted of any that has ever been given in this church H G H

MIND GIVING WAY TO DRINK

Louie McLean Gradually Becoming a Candidate For the Insane Asylum

Louie McLean formerly night clerk at the International is at the city jail on a suspicion of mild insanity As Mr Will Alexander came out of the dining room last evening, he was accosted by McLean with the inquiry Where is Jesus Christ On being questioned further about the matter he explained that the devil was after him rough shod and that Jesus Christ was in one of the rooms of the hotel and would protect him

Alexander cheerfully took this office upon himself in the temporary absence of the party desired and escorted his friend out into the fresh air After walking a short distance the sound of a violin again started McLean off on his chimera and in endeavoring to hold him Alexander received from him a violent blow which nearly staggered him He quickly recovered however and managed to get the unfortunate fellow to the station where he was taken care of

McLean was not drunk said Alexander but his malady is in my opinion undoubtedly due to a prolonged and excessive use of liquor He never drinks enough to get anyways intoxicated but has long been a hard drinker and others as well as myself have noticed his mind gradually giving way

McLean is a sparely built man of short stature very dim hollow eyes and restless air His insanity is of a comparatively harmless nature and will not be apt to necessitate confinement.

WHAT YOUR TAXES WILL BE

Altogether They Will be a Fraction Less Than Last Year

The County Commissioners Court Will Make the Levy To Day—Nearly $175 000 Required for County Purposes

Nearly all day yesterday County Judge Catlin and County Commissioners Dunne and Smith were in session estimating how much will be required to run the county next year and just to what extent they will have to tax the people to raise the necessary money

Their estimate was something short of $175 000 inclusive of $8 000 for an addition to the court house as compared with an estimate of $111 500 last year while the actual expenditures were $141 000 making a deficit of $8,660 56 When they had finished their labors last evening they had found that they could raise all the necessary money and make the total tax lower than it was last year as this comparison will show

	'88	'87
County tax in mills	7 [illegible]	6 [illegible]
School tax in mills	0	50
State tax in mills	0	49
Militia tax in mills	0	0 [illegible]
University tax in mills	01	01
Special road tax in mills	0
Total	[illegible]	[illegible]

The figures for 1888 must not be taken for granted for the tax has not been levied but the levy will not change them much The school tax is provided by law and the state military and university tax will doubtless be as given So Gov Pennoyer said to a reporter the other day and as he is one of the board which will make the levy he ought to know The special road tax of half a mill will be levied to make needed repairs to the county roads It is expected that the county tax will be as given That was the opinion of Judge Catlin and the county commissioners last evening They will meet again to day further to consider the matter and levy the tax

A tax levy on the basis of the figures given would produce the following amount for the purposes named

County	$1 [illegible]
School	111 [illegible]
State	[illegible]
Military	4 [illegible] 89
State University	2 2 [illegible] 48
Roads	11 1 7 [illegible] 25

FAR UP TOWARD THE NORTH POLE.

Mr and Mrs. Don Return From a Trip to the Cheerless Regions of Siberia

Mr Robert Don of Stockton Cal accompanied by his wife and child arrived here Sunday from Siberia and left for home overland yesterday Mr Don left San Francisco in February last on a vessel which carried two steamboats, knocked down bound for Nicolaefsk a port of entry on the Amoor river 600 miles from its mouth where he was to superintend the putting together of these boats They were for the Amoor Gold Mining Company to run up the branches of the Amoor where placer mines are being worked to gather up the gold carry supplies etc One of the boats was 125 feet long the other 250 feet

Mr Don says there are rich placer mines in this region the amount collected last year being 200 poods of thirty six pounds or 7200 pounds He believes Siberia to be the richest country in minerals in the world there being mines of gold silver copper iron lead and coal there

Nicolaefsk is at the head of navigation for sea going vessels and a great deal of tea is brought there to be shipped overland to Russia There is a good farming country around there where they raise wheat oats rye barley and all kinds of hardy vegetables In the winter there is about three feet of snow and the thermometer goes to 40 degrees below zero

Mrs Don enjoyed herself very well during the three months of their stay there although during all that time she never saw a woman who could speak a word of English Her daughter a bright little four year old played with the Russian children and learned to talk with them quite well

The country is healthy and the inhabitants robust The Amoor is alive with salmon and on these and rye bread the poorer classes live principally The well to do people dress well the ladies wearing as much finery and Parisian millinery as in other places

The residents are principally exiles who cannot go back to Russia and many emigrants are now being sent in there the government supplying them with food agricultural implements, etc, to last them for a year The Amoor would be a good place for salmon canning if the Russian government would allow them But as the salmon form the principal subsistence of the inhabitants they will not be allowed to be exterminated They are very plentiful and appear to be about the same as our Chinook salmon many weighing forty to fifty two pounds

Mr Don visited Siberia five years ago on a similar errand They sailed from Nicolaefsk for Port Townsend and were eight weeks on the passage They were six days endeavoring to get in from the time they sighted land having started up the Straits of Fuca once and being obliged to run out to sea again Finally they reefed everything down and succeeded in getting into Port Townsend

CITY BOARD OF CHARITIES

The meeting of the city board of charities at the First Congregational church last night was largely attended This in fact was one of the most important meetings yet held for the plans scope and purposes of the work were agreed upon in the adoption of a constitution Quite a number took an active part in the discussion of the various clauses of the constitution and all took a deep interest in the proceeding

The report of the committee appointed to draft a constitution and by laws was presented by T N Strong

Remarks were made by Rev T L Eliot Judge Williams Rev Clapp Rev Driver William Wadhams and several others

While at times there seemed to be a little conflict of opinion regarding the minor details of the constitution the document as a whole was unanimously adopted All were agreed that this organization would fill a long felt want and prove a successful solution of the tramp problem

On motion of Judge Williams a committee was appointed to solicit subscriptions for the society The terms of annual membership was fixed at $6 and that of a life membership at $100

At the conclusion of the meeting signatures to subscriptions amounting to over $100 were received The organization will elect its first board of officers as soon as the city has been canvassed and the signatures to the constitution received

It is not yet known where the headquarters of the association will be The intention is to have them at some place centrally located It is estimated that the expenses of the board of charities will be about $2000 or $3000 a year

The meeting adjourned subject to a call of the chairman

Steel Masts and Rigging—State Rooms A Scientifically Minded Whale—Capt Williams Suite of Rooms—A Sailorboy s Fall

The British ship Maxwell Capt F G Fraser now loading a cargo of wheat at the Irving dock is one of the finest ships if not the finest that has ever visited Portland She was built in Liverpool in February 1887 by T Royden & Son and is owned by Johnston Sproule & Co of that port She is 1800 tons register and carries about 300 tons of wheat Her dimensions are Length 259 feet 1 inch beam 39 feet 1 inch depth 23 feet 5 inches She is built in the most thorough and substantial manner and in many respects in excess of Lloyd s requirements She has steel lower masts and topmasts and the lower and topsail yards are of the same material The rigging is all of steel wire set up with crew lanyards fore and aft The deck house forward is built of iron and contains comfortable quarters for the crew carpenters lion and kitchen The poop deck is 50 feet long in which is a large and commodious cabin finished with bird s eye maple and mahogany and carpeted with Brussels carpeting There are several state rooms for passengers The captain s room is large and fitted up with upholstered settees book shelves chest of drawers chart cases and everything necessary for that officer s comfort and convenience A bath room adjoins for the captain s use The general appearance of the ship on decks is a credit to her builders as well as to the captain and officers She is furnished with six capstans two being a very common number on seagoing vessels Her original cost was about $130 000

First Officer Beasley relates an interesting incident of the trip up from San Francisco

About three days out from San Francisco said he where we left a cargo of coal from Sydney we had a companion voyager in the person of a large whale who sported about the ship for a day or two His attention was soon taken up with our patent log a copper machine which measures the distance traveled and which is towed along by a rope about 120 fathoms in length He finally opened his mouth and took it in whether for the purpose of measuring his own course through the briny he did not say It is about eighteen inches in diameter and no doubt severely tested his digestive machinery

The Moresby coming direct from home is an object of interest to English captains She brings 500 tons of steel rails about the same amount of salt 100 tons each of pig iron and tin plate 100 tons of coke and a quantity of beer and stout Captain Williams s crew is composed wholly of negroes picked up at Liverpool. They are inferior to white sailors especially in cold weather

They were innocently the cause of some trouble to the boarding house runners at Astoria" said Captain Williams Three boat loads of these fellows came aboard of us there well supplied with whisky They were with us off and on from 3 in the morning until 9 at night and failed to do any business with the negroes but succeeded in drinking up all their own whisky and becoming quite the worse for it

One of the four white apprentice boys had a narrow escape from death on the voyage One night off Cape Horn a violent wind and heavy snow storm struck the ship and young Williamson who was here on the Netherby visit a year or more since was sent aloft making a sail fast on the main topgallant yard From this he was heard to fall and the cry went up Man overboard The captain was roused all hands called on deck the helm put down when it was discovered that the lad had fallen in the top after a descent of one forty five feet and sustained a dislocation of the left shoulder He was put in the cabin thawed out shoulder set and in a month was at work

What kind of a passage did you have was asked

In the south Atlantic we encountered a succession of heavy gales during the four days of August 13 to 16 inclusive For sixty hours we were in a tremendous whirl about 150 or 200 feet wide which stayed with us At the request of the hydrographer s office in San Francisco I furnished their an account of it

Do you hear anything of owners furnishing ships with charts

They seem to be getting more and more in the way of it I saw on the Blair Gowerie before I left home an unusually fine collection of charts prepared in a portfolio —the best outfit of the kind I ever saw Contract specifications now frequently include the purchase of charts on the part of the owners

The Moresby s furnishings are rarely excelled Six finely furnished rooms belong to his suite The main cabin is finished with sixteen panels the full hight of the room These are composed of a central panel of bird s eye maple framed successively by teak satinwood and American walnut all highly polished A fireplace with a cheerful blaze of English coal is at one end and from above light is introduced through panes of stained and frosted glass A large collection of geraniums and other flowers make the room cheerful tended by the careful hands of Mrs Williams and her little son and by the aid of the fire they safely passed the wintry weather of the Horn The drawing room is finished like the cabin and contains piano library etc The captain's private room is luxuriously furnished, joined by the bathroom and shower bath The chronometer room which contains quite a small drug store and the spare room complete the quarters

THEY HAVE A BETTER WAY

Pacific Coast Canners Not Affected by a Recent Decision in Boston

Astorian Nov 25

Reference was made yesterday morning to a verdict rendered in the U S circuit court in Boston last Thursday which was said to involve the collection of millions of dollars in royalties annually from canners of fruit salmon etc. in the United States for the use of a soldering iron It seems however that the salmon canners of this coast are not affected by the decision as the tool is one that is used for soldering the circular piece of tin that one can find in the middle of the top of the cans of fruits and vegetables that are sent here from the East The tops and bottoms of salmon cans are made of one piece and they are soldered by rolling through a bath of melted solder which renders the application of a soldering iron unnecessary
